BRITISH YOUTH FAILS AT TROON

TROON, Scotland, June 15.—G. A. Whitcombe, youthful Britisher who was but one stroke behind Havers at the end of the third round in the British open, with 220, blew up completely on his final round, took an 82 and finished far behind with 302. Whitcombe had an excellent chance to win the title when he set out this afternoon as Havers had taken a 76 and a 74 would have given the youngster the championship. Inclement weather and a driving wind which swept the course, helped rob Whitcombe of the victory.

The final standing of the leading contestants was:

Arthur Havers, Britain, 72, 73, 73, 76—295.
Walter Hagen, United States, 76, 71, 74, 75—296.

Grand Island—Several churches of the city, in cooperation, established the Lally Vacation Bible School in several portions of the city at the close of the public school term and the promoters are highly satisfied with the results. Play, kindergarten work, studies and talks on art, good music, reverence and loyalty are the main features of the curriculum. A large attendance is reported with enthusiasm for the plan by the parents of the children. Only part of the day is thus taken up.

Polishing Reflectors.

Owing to the high finish applied to lamp reflectors extreme care should be taken in polishing them, as it is an easy matter to scratch this highly polished surface. A little powdered dry rouge applied with a chamois is the most effective and safest way to clean reflectors. When badly tarnished, moisten the rouge with alcohol and apply as before, then polish the surface with dry rouge. In doing this always use circular strokes.

Former Governor Lowden Declares Taxation is Increasing Faster Than Wealth.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 15.—Government extravagance threatens to undermine the national structure, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, Illinois, told the national association of credit men's convention her etoday. He declared taxation is increasing faster than wealth.

Quoting the constitution at the outset of his speech, Lowden charged that in spite of the limits imposed in the document, the national wealth was being absorbed by taxation, and predicted the downfall of government if reckless expenditure were not curtailed.

"A prolific cause of the rapidly increasing cos tof government," Lowden said, "is the number of public agencies having the power to levy taxes. When all of these taxes are totaled they dangerously approach the line of confiscation."

To check this "growing extravagance on the part of the government," Lowden urged that municipalities and states provide for their own needs and leave the government the task of caring for national needs.

"Encroachment upon the authority of state officials by the horde of bureaucrats—an outgrowth of governmental extravagance—threatens a breakdown in the local self government of America," he declared.

"If the present tendency of states to seek federal aid and to amend the constitution at will, is left unchecked, states will soon become mere satrapies with all their powers issuing from Washington."

ADMITS NAME IS AN ALIAS

Samuel Woodyard Took Name of Murphy to Prevent Family's Knowledge of Shame.

BALTIMORE, June 15.—Photographs of Samuel Louis Woodyard, alias William J. Murphy, who is accused of murdering John B. Jones, Salvation Army watchman here, will be sent to Wilmington, Del., today to have them identified by a prisoner there who accuses Woodyard of being implicated in a murder in Boston.

Woodyard said it was to spare his mother the shame that he gave the name of Murphy to the police when he was arrested last Saturday.

He said his home is in Des Moines, Ia., and when asked concerning ih implication in the murder in Boston laid forth the details of his life to headquarters detectives who questioned him at the city jail.

His father he said was killed in a mining accident when he was ten years old. He had to stop school when he was in the fifth grade to help support his mothre.

RIVER CUTS AROUND DAM

Big Cement Structure on Republican at Superior Left High and Dry.

SUPERIOR, Neb., June 15. — The big cement dam of the Southern Nebraska Power company in the Republican river here, built three years ago at a cost of over $60,000, was left high and dry Thursday afternoon, when the river, which is receding from the highest mark in years, cut out around the south side of the structure and made a new channel twenty-five feet wide. The south end of the dam was formed partly by an old dam that had been in the river and was weaker than the north end and the washing away of sand in the river let the south end loose and the current went around washing part of it out. The dam is located about one-half mile west of the city in the vicinity of the concrete and steel bridge across the river which was condemned by state authorities three weeks ago after it was weakened by flood waters of May 25. The power company furnishes current to Superior and twenty-four other towns in Nuckalls, Thayer and Clay counties, Nebraska, and to Republic county, Kansas. It is not known what action will be taken yet in regard to the dam. It is understood that as the power company bought up smaller plants at the towns it now controls the local engines and machinery were purchased also, and it may now be necessary to repair and place several of these oil engines in service to help out temporarily.

TRUCK DRIVER NOW AN EARL

San Francisco Man Inherts Eight Million Dollars and English Title.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—Russel S. Houston, truck driver, became the millionaire earl of Covington today according to word receiver from England.

A cablegram from lawyers for his mother's estate, advised Houston he had inherited $8,000,000 and the title, earl of Covington. His mother, Mrs. Anita Houston Congdon, daughter of the earl of Covington, died two years ago.

Houston came here when he was two years old, a poor barefooted immigrant. Today he bought some spats and prepared to return to England.

Decorating With Chintz.

When chintz and cretonne are viewed from the standpoint of their possibilities of color effect, any preconceived notion of such materials being suited to only certain rooms is replaced by the knowledge that they are really mediums only. As such they may be managed so that any degree of suitability may be obtained. Suitability may govern the type of design and color effect to be chosen, that is all.

Suppose you wish a room that subtly displays colors dark and restful, without, however, showing any flavor of gloom. Haunt the chintz counters until you find a piece that satisfies you by reason of its deep mauve background, made more quiet and restful in effect by the contrasting notes of turquoise, rose and yellow. These will later furnish spice when reproduced in the accents of the room scheme.

Such a piece recently seen had this color combination. The mauve background was formed by an all-over, close-set pattern of flat mauve flowers and foliage, so distributed that hardly any of the putty-colored background was visible. On this mauve ground were graceful sprays of rose and yellow flowers in brilliant turquoise jars, not especially noticeable in themselves, but creating a delightful harmony awaiting further development.

This living room had walls of putty color, and the floor was covered by a large plain rug of taupe. Long side drapes of the cretonne were hung at the windows, decoratively lined with turquoise green. Plain mauve velour made the straight, tight valances. The glass-curtains were of plain ecru fishnet, untrimmed, and made with deep hems. Much of the furniture in this room was walnut—the desk and the refectory table. The legs and arms of some of the upholstered chairs were also walnut.

The sofa, one overstuffed chair and one of the walnut chairs were upholstered in deep mauve color. Another chair was done in taupe, another in soft-ashes-of-roses. The pillows were severally covered with the cretonne, plain taupe and deep turquoise. The lamps were shaded in soft old-yellow silk.—Designer Magazine.

What Prohibition Does.

One feature of our import trade under the republican tariff must be emphasized—that our increased imports are made up largely of raw materials for use in manufacture. This means that the manufacturing is done by American labor, thus supplying more jobs and more wages for American workmen.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

When You Have a Load to Carry.

When a former collector of internal revenue for the Philippines told an audience in this country about the operation of the sales tax in the islands, one of his hearers protested. He had lived in the Philippines for several years, he said, and never had paid a sales tax. As the tax had been worked out and put into operation under the direction of the speaker, the protestor proved a disadvantage. But he gave valuable testimony to the fact that a sales tax is one of the least oppressive taxes ever devised.

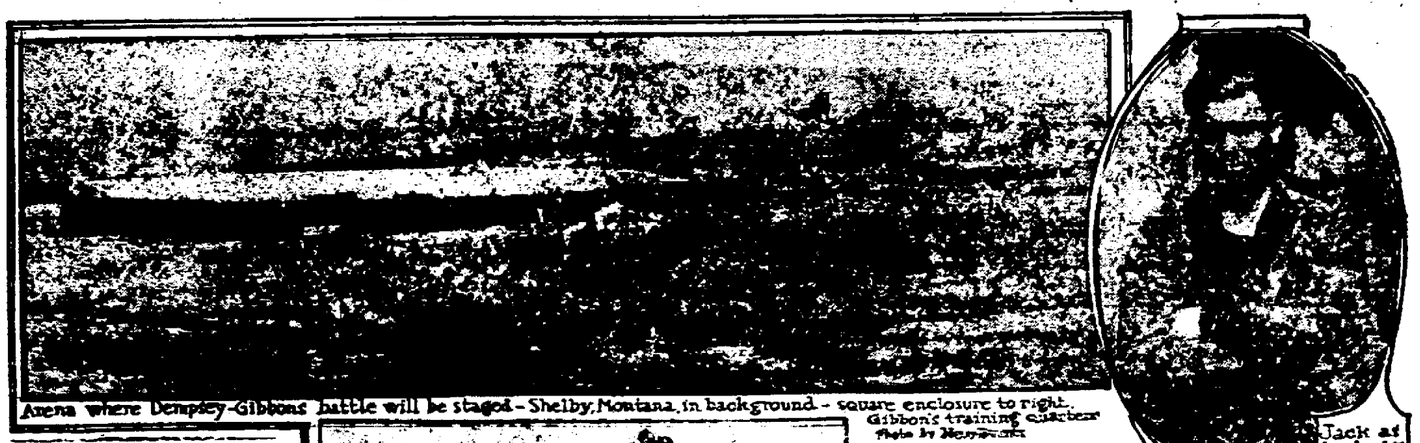

In the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Forrest Crissey quotes the testimony of several Canadians on the sales tax in Canada, where it produces almost twice the revenue that the government derives from the income tax. A telegraph operator said that nobody paid any attention to the sales tax. A retired military man had no idea what articles were exempted from the tax because he was not conscious of paying it. A woman did not know she was paying a tax on the clothing she wore.

If you have a load to carry it makes all the difference in the world how it is distributed. Try to carry a 50-pound box by a handle with one hand and it will tear your arm off. Get it strapped on your back and you can carry it with comfort. The sales tax distributes the load in such fashion that nobody notices it. The income tax piles up in such fashion that it breaks the back of new enterprises.—Kansas City Star.

Governor Baxter and His Dog.

Governor Baxter is a bachelor. He evidently loves dogs more than politicians. Dog haters will find the obituary memorandum of Garry insufferably ungubernatorial. Dog lovers like William Allan White, who lost and recovered his four-footed friend, and Augustus Thomas, whose companion, Lux, was advertised as strayed by an ex-secretary of state, will understand. People with a sense of humor will not be outraged by the flag incident at Augusta. It was creditable to the governor's heart, if not to his head. Way down east the structures of the committee on the correct use of the American flag will not weigh with neighbors who know the kind of man the governor is. His act was highly irregular, but they believe him when he says that he "yields to no one in his respect and reverence for the flag." The Hon. Percival Baxter is thoro homespun.—New York Times.

OX-CART PIONEER RIDES IN AIRPLANE

Mrs. Gertrude Freeman

Mrs. Gertrude Freeman, of Sacramento, who plodded across the continent in 1855 by ox-cart, has lived to ride over the same route in an airplane. She is 84 and had ridden in buggies, trains and automobiles, but the trip in the clouds was a novel experience. According to A. L. Globecy, who piloted the plane in which Mrs. Freeman flew in a few hours over cities which once were rolling plains, taking days to traverse, she acted "like a regular veteran."

CLOUDBURST VISITS WICHITA

Danger at Oklahoma City is Reported Passed.

Electrical Disturbances Cause Much Damage—Six Inches of Rain Fell at Osceola During Night.

OMAHA, June 15.—Two men were killed by lightning and a woman probably fatally injured in electric storms which swept this section last night. William Onken, farmer living near Greenfield, Ia., was killed while working on a corn crib.

Frank Greisen, forty, farmer, living seven miles northwest of Platte Center, Neb., was instantly killed when struck by a bolt while digging a drain ditch.

Mrs. Roy Lamley, living near North Bend, Neb., was struck by lightning as she was sitting on her front porch. She will probably die, physicians said.

The storm was general thruout eastern Nebraska, western Iowa and southern South Dakota. Lightning razed trees, telephone poles and wrecked farm buildings and chimneys.

Hail, accompanying the storm, destroyed wheat and corn fields. Hundreds of birds were killed.

Six inches of rain fell at Osceola, Neb.

A bolt of lightning put the power plant at Fremont, Neb., out of commission for several hours.

More than three inches of rain fell in Columbus in less than three hours. Creston reported two inches and Norfolk one and a half inches.

The rain caused the Republican river to rise rapidly. Part of the dam of the Southern Nebraska Power Co. went out at Superior, Neb., and damage was reported thruout the entire Republican river valley.

COLUMBUS, Neb., June 15. — The cloudburst here was accompanied by terrific electrical disturbances. The whole county was deluged with 3.05 inches of rain in three hours. Bolt after bolt of lightning devastated trees and telephone poles, put wires out of commission, wrecked chimneys and out buildings.

Hail accompanied the storm as it swept south in a wide swath to within a few miles of David City. Second corn plantings and winter wheat fields were washed out in wholesale lots.

Storm at Wichita.

WICHITA, Kas., June 15.—Houses were wrecked and streets flooded here today following a cloudburst and tornado which struck the town last night.

Sections already flooded were further menaced by the deluge of rain which caused rivers to rise to new high levels sending fresh torrents thru streets and residence districts.

The Orient railway car sheds and the Wichita theater building were blown down by the high winds.

Reports from Oklahoma City today indicated further danger from flood waters there had passed. The crest of the North Canadian river was reached last night, weather observers said.

Heavy rains thruout Kansas during the night, however, were expected to send a new wall of water into Wichita today.

FLOODS FIFTY YEARS AGO

Soldiers Were Drowned in Hitchcock County: Others Hung to Trees Forty-eight Hours.

An instance of Nebraska waters on a rampage, drowning soldiers and forcing others to climb trees, is chronicled in the Chicago Tribune's "Fifty years ago" column. The item as printed in 1873, follows:

SUPER-POWER PLANT FOR NATION PLANNED

Plans are under way, is has been ascertained for the development of a huge, unified privately-owned electrical system, capable of supplying the power needs of the entire country. They are being backed by the Westinghouse Electric company. Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the company's board of director's, has admitted. Fulfillment of the plans, requiring years, would entail an investment of five billion dollars and an increase of probably a billion a year in money spent for electricity. It would offer a practicable method of electrifying all of the country's steam railroads, however. Frank G Baum, consulting engineer, of San Francisco, has developed the idea beyond the theory stage.

BROWN HELD FOR A TRIAL

ACCUSED OFFICIAL WAIVES PRELIMINARY HEARING.

Charged By Telephone Company With Having Embezzled Various Sums of Money During Last Few Months.

Phillip A. Brown, former chief clerk in the treasurer's office of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company, was bound over to district court on an embezzlement charge by Justice of Peace W. A. Hawes at 9 a. m. Friday. Mr. Brown waived preliminary hearing. The charges involve four counts and allege that he took into his possession and converted to his own use telephone company funds amounting to $3,021.83. He was released on $3,000 bond with Phillip Brown, sr., and Agnes Brown as surety. It is charged that the defendant abstracted company funds in four different instances. The complaint, which is signed by W. B. Larzelere, charges that $700 was taken on April 24, $1,550 on April 3, $359.29 on September 4, 1922, and $412.54 on October 5. Mr. Brown pleaded innocence when arraigned Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Brown has been in the employ of the company for nearly fifteen years, and has been one of its trusted officials. He had charge of making deposits for the company, and it is charged that on several occasions drafts sent in from outside exchanges by the managers were taken by Brown and split up, part being deposited to the company's account and the remainder being taken to another bank and there deposited to the personal credit of Brown, who has been largely interested in a bowling alley proposition.

Auditors are now going over the company books over which he had control to ascertain if any other sums are missing than those set out in the complaint.

SUE GARDNER FOR DAMAGES

ACTION BROUGHT FOR INJURIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Petitions For $12,250 Damages Filed as Result of Son's Recklessness in Driving.

Suit for $12,250.00 damages were filed against Harvey W. Gardner and his son, J. Carl Gardner, by Cassie Daniel and Raymond Phelps in the district court Friday morning. This action is the result of a motor accident that occurred on west O street near Emerald, June 3 about 10 p. m.

A car belonging to Mrs. Daniel and driven by John Kugler had stopped just the other side of the overhead railroad bridge for the purpose of putting on chains before driving off the pavement into the mud. Cassie Daniel had been in the car with Mr Kugler but when they stopped, a friend of theirs, Raymond Phelps of College View, happened to be driving by and stopped his car about fifty feet ahead of the Daniel's Ford and got out and helped with the chains. When the work of putting on the chains was finished Mrs. Daniel went with Phelps back to his car, a Chevrolet roadster, leaving Kugler alone in the Ford.

Mrs. Daniel and Mr. Phelps had just gotten into the Phelps car when a Packard roadster driven by J. Carl Gardner at a high rate of speed, it is alleged, flashed under the bridge and struck the Ford with such force as to drive in into the Phelp's car, some fifty feet ahead, and to completely demolish it, at the same time damaging the Phelps' car.

John Kugler who was in the Daniel's car at the time sustained a fraacture of the base of the skull and was taken to the Lincoln Sanitarium where he is still undergoing treatment. Mrs. Daniel and Mr. Phelps also sustained injuries from the shock. Mrs. Daniel in this action claims damages to her person to the extent of $10,000 and for the demolishing of her car $500.

Raymond Phelps in his petition claims damages to his person to the extent of $1,000 and for the injury of his car $750.

DOWNPOUR IN EAST SECTION

MORE RAIN FALLS WHEN CORN NEEDS PLOWING.

Some Delay to Farm Work in Some Parts of the State Because of Frequent Rain Storms.

Farm work in a large part of the eastern section of the state is still being delayed by frequent rains. In many places corn needs plowing.

Burlington weather reports for Friday morning showed that the east central section of the state had been given another drenching. Every division of the road except the McCook division reported heavy rain in places and showers generally. The Lincoln division reports rains ranging from a quarter of an inch to an inch, excepting at Cairo and Ravenna, where the rain was very heavy. No damage of any kind was reported.

Other reports showed that the rain extended west of Holdrege and to North Platte, but did not touch the southwest section.

Fairly heavy rains were reported from a number of Nebraska localities Thursday afternoon and night. The heaviest shown on the weather records in the state were at Columbia, where a trifle over two inches of rain fell. A little more than an inch fell at Tekamah. No rain fell at Culbertson, Fairbury, Hastings, O'Neill or Red Cloud and a very little at Grand Island. Other stations reporting were Ashland .22; Auburn .70; Fairmont .66; Hartington .32; Holdrege .78; North Loup .78; North Platte .38; Oakdale .26; Omaha .46; Valentine .14.

Rain reports from Kansas were more serious in character. Eastern Kansas had from two to four inches of rain. It was unusually heavy in the vicinity of Wichita, where the most serious trouble from overflow has occurred. Wichita reported 3.72 inches of rain. Kansas City reported 2.50 inches of rain. Some of the railroads in that part of Kansas have been out of service for a week, and the most recent rainfall will probably add to their troubles.

Unofficial reports Thursday night indicated a serious fall of rain in the vicinity of Osceola, this state. Six inches was reported from that place. The electrical storm was especially severe in the vicinity of South Bend and Fremont. Trains on the Northwestern, Hastings and Superior lines were delayed by high water. In some parts of north Nebraska the rainfall was also heavy.

CODE DEPARTMENTS HEADS MUST BRIDLE TONGUES.

Governor Repudiates Published Statement of Reorganized Road Department and Capitol Expenses.

Governor Bryan has issued an edict to all subordinate officials that they must not make public any information in regard to affairs for which the governor is responsible until he has at least had a chance to act or pass upon the matters so made known to the world.

"Those who disregarded this order," said the governor "might as well accompany their alibis with a resignation."

This edict was called forth, the governor explained by the recent appearance in newspapers of a purported reorganization of the department of public works, with appointments of engineers. The governor also referred to a recent publication of expenditures of the capitol commission from the organization of that body up to the first of June. The latter came from the department of public works or an employe of that department, and was intended for the capitol commission and its chairman, Governor Bryan. The expense account was to be furnished thru the clerk of the house to members of the legislature. Chief Clerk Corrick of the house has furnished copies of the account to members of the legislature.

"The captol commission never saw it and I have ant examined it or approved it. The commission desires to make some changes in the account, but it is now too late. The copies, presumably, have been sent by the clerk of the house to legislators.

"I have been receiving letters asking me about a published statement of reorganization of the road department," continued the governor, "but I have approved no plan and have made no appointments such as were published. The publication was not authorized."

BUILDS HOUSE ON WHEELS

Omaha Salesman Tires of Small Town Hotels and Equips Car With Modern Conveniences

J. Earl McConnell, of Omaha, a traveling salesman, wearied of putting up in small town hotels with poor accommodations so he constructed a house on wheels in which he and his wife enjoy the comforts of home. It is a bus-like affair built on a Ford chassis. It is equipped with running water, a gas stove and a refrigerator. The seat folds out into a bed. The place is electrically lighted and furnishes special compartments for bedding, clothing and cooking utensils. A folding dining table is hinged to a wall.

Mr. McConnell and wife have been living in the auto since last July 4. Mr. McConnell is salesman for an Indiana stove concern and his wife handles a wholesale line of patent pencils. The windows are similar to those of a pullman car and the auto can be well ventilated. "This beats living in smalltown hotels and roasting to death in summer and freezing in winter," said Mr McConnell as he let down the windows and opened the rear door allowing a gust of wind to blow thru the car. The layout appears to be convenient and economical. McConnell's territory is over Nebraska and northeast Colorado.

NEW BOARD FIXES VALUE

RAILROADS' TAXABLE PROPERTY REMAINS THE SAME.

State Officers Unanimously on Record That Increase in Value of Real Estate is Out of Proportion.

Railroad property in Nebraska is to be valued for assessment at the amount fixed by the state board of equalization and assessment last year. The new board, on comprising Governor Bryan, Secretary of State Pool, State Tax Commissioner W. H. Smith, State Treasurer Robinson and State Auditor Marsh, met Friday at the governor's office and unanimously adopted a resolution denying the request of railroads for a reduction in valuation. The total valuation of the roads this year is $35,825 higher than last year on account of slight increases in mileage of the Northwestern, M. & O. and Rock Island.

The total valuation this year is $315,665,705.

The resolution adopted by the board calls attention to the fact that it is not possible under the law to revalue farm property and other real estate until next year, that the records disclose that the per centage of increase in the assessed valuation of farms, homes and other forms of real estate has been out of proportion to that of other property, and the per centage of the taxes paid by the railroads is not in excess of their proportionate share of the total taxes paid by all classes of property.

The Burlington and Northwestern roads are still in the federal courts contesting the valuation fixed by the board for last year.

The mileage and valuation of each road has been fixed by the board as follows:

FIND ORCHESTRA MEMBER DEAD

COLUMBUS, Neb., June 15.—John Howard Havlick of David City, Neb., a member of a local orchestra, was found dead Thursday on the floor of the bathroom of the house at which he roomed. It is believed that the young man fainted from the heat of a hot water boiler in the closed room, and then died from asphyxiation caused by gas fumes from the burner.

WILL TRY IT WEEK LONGER

NORMAL FARE EXPERIMENT NOT SUCCESS SO FAR.

Company Agrees to Extension of Tryout But Matter Set Down For Hearing on Thursday of Next Week.

By an agreement between the city attorney and the traction company officials the two months' experiment of an eight cent far on the Normal line will be continued for a week longer than the limit originally set, which will keep it in effect until a week from next Sunday.

For several years all riders to the suburban centers have paid a ten cent fare. Normal was one of these. The fare limit there was a short distance east of the Rock Island track crossing. When Normal became a part of the city the residents thereof suggested, in a petition to the railway commission, that they have an eight cent fare like all other Lincoln residents.

The company replied that the city limits never have been the fare zone limits, and that their revenues would not stand such a reduction as would follow. Manager Shaw was willing, however, to accept the suggestion that it be tried out in the belief that enough additional fares would be received to maintain revenues.

Mr. Shaw said Friday that while for the first few weeks there was a decided increase in the traffic carried, in the last month the number carried has dropped down to but a little more than under the ten cent fare, and that the increased business for the entire period does not offset the loss in revenues. He will submit the figures to support his at the hearing.

It was urged by Normalites at the time the matter was informally discussed that a number of them who live only a few blocks beyond the fare limit were in the habit of riding only as far as eight cents carried them and walked the remainder of the way.

MIXED BOUTS PERMISSIBLE

GOVERNOR RESCINDS RULE AGAINST NEGRO BOXERS.

But Reserves Right to Pass Upon Boxing Contests Without Regard to Race or Color.

Governor Bryan has dispensed with the services of "Lum" Doyle, athletic commissioner under the department of public welfare, and the work of that official so far as it relates to the boxing game is being performed by Secretary H. H. Antles, head of the department.

The governor has gone further and rescinded the department's rule prohibiting mixed bouts, or boxing between white and colored men.

This does not mean that the boxing commissioner or secretary of the department or the governor intends to permit white and blacks to mix in the prize ring. He makes it plain that the rule is abrogated because he believes it deprives the black race of their constitution rights to obtain a license and appear with whites in the prize ring, but that the athletic official of the state still has a right to approve or disapprove any proposed bout to be given.

"The department's rule is in conflict with the United States constitution," said Governor Bryan." There might have been merit in the rule as a matter of public opinion in some communities, but the state cannot promulgate such a rule without being unfair to the black race. The department can approve or disapprove any proposed contest of boxers, but not prohibit a contest on account of the color of one contestant. I have rescinded the rule myself."

Mayor James C. Dahlman and other prominent people of Omaha petitioned to have the rule set aside last year but the McKelvie administration, including Secretary Antles of the department of public welfare, refused to change the rule. They considered it a good rule for the boxing game. Some argued against a change of the rule on the ground that no one has a constitutional right to engage in fights or contests in the ring.

The governor said Mr. Doyle had not been on the state payroll since the first of June and that the secretary "whose duties are not arduous, had assumed the work formerly done by the athletic commissioner.

This information was forthcoming when the governor was asked if the code law permits Mr Doyle as athletic commissioner, to hold the position of assistant county attorney of Lancaster county, or any other position of profit.

"The head of the department of welfare will disappear July 1," added Governor Bryan "as a result of the failure of the legislature to provide salaries for code secretaries. The legislature was strong on welfare but weak on salaries."

The governor said the fate of the department of welfare will be made known when he completes his reorganization of code departments.

DEVOTES TIME TO EX-SOLDIERS.

LONDON, June 15.—Field Marshal Earl Haig, commander-in-chief of the British armies in France, celebrates his sixty-second birthday today and is receiving many congratulations, especially from his war-time soldiers whose battle he is still fighting. When the army of occupation on the Rhine was turned over to a junior general, Haig was appointed to the sinecure post of "commander-in-chief in Britain" but he soon resigned this to be free to take up the cudgels on behalf of the men he led to victory but whose claims the politicians were in danger of forgetting. Haig in season and out of season is steadily fighting pension and other claims on behal of his battlefield comrades. In doing so he has sacrificed all chance of well paid official jobs.

MUNY SWIM POOL TO OPEN

Gates Will Open Wide at 9 O'clock Saturday Morning According to Mayor Zehrung.

The muny swim pool will open at 9 a. m. Saturday. This announcement was made Friday noon by Mayor Zehrung who finally surrendered in the face of a deluge of requests. This is the second announced opening. The pool did not open on the first opening last Sunday. Cold weather interfered. The alligators, the big bull frogs, the turtles and the snakes are gone. There's nothing in the big 800,000 gallon vat but water. There never were any aligators and snakes tho frogs and turtles are s aid to have enjoyed a frolicsome time of it. The water is new and clean.

The splash tub will be open twelve hours a day, the same as last year. The closing hour is set at 9 p. m. The big tank will be filled and re-filled from time to time the same as in other seasons since its establishment. Next year, if things go right, the mayor intends to install a filtration plant. This will assure a uniform temperature on all days. The water will circulate continuously thru the cleansing apparatus and back into the pool. This will mean less new water and fewer shivers and shakes. The plant will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. This, at l east, was the estimate two years ago.

CHIEF JOHNSTONE RETURNS

Maintains That Purse Was Not Flat When He Sent Telegram to Mayor Collect.

Chief of Police Peter Johnstone darkened the door to police headquarters Friday morning after an absence of about two weeks. He returned at 8.20 a. m. from New York and Washington D. C. He attended the annual shriner's convention at the latter place. The weather was unbearably hot at the national capitol, according to the chief.

The police head maintains that he had plenty of money when he sent the telegram collect to Mayor Zehrung recently. His alibi is that the operator made a mistake and sent the wrong message collect when he wired the police department and mayor at the same time.

A state warrant for $135,[illegible] was issued Friday in payment of Tekamah paving bonds which the board of deucational lands and funds bought as an investment for the soldier relief fund. The bonds draw 5 per cent interest and are optional any time. SLAYER OF A WOMAN HANGS

CASPAR PASTONI EXECUTED AT COOK COUNTY JAIL.

Had Killed Woman Who Rejected His Affections and Her Daughter and Then Tried to Commit Suicide.

CHICAGO, June 15—Caspar Pastoni forty-four, first of eight men awaiting execution here, was hanged in the Cook county jail today for the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Witchell, who refused his affections, and her eleven-year-old daughter.

J. J. Buckley and Edward J. Hamilton, his attorneys announced shortly before the execution that Pastoni had been unable to borrow forty dollars with which to pay expenses of a trip to Springfield to seek a reprieve from Governor Small.

Pastoni was hanged at 7:11 a. m. and was pronounced dead fourteen minutes later. Blind in one eye and almost deaf from a self-inflicted wound at the time of thme double murder, he walked calmly to the scaffold.

"I forgive all those who have prosecuted me and I hope God will forgive me," Partoni said as the noose was adjusted.

Pastoni spent a peaceful night and had a good sleep. He was led to the scaffold by Sheriff Peter Hoffman and a priest.

He had become resigned to his fate after frantic late minute efforts to raise the money to send relatives or an attorney to Springfield to plead for a reprieve. Attorneys who were appointed by the court without pay expressed willingness to go if the expenses were available.

Relatives, including Mrs. Osa Pastoni, a sister, of Madison, Wis, were unable to produce the money.

The shooting for which Pastoni was convicted occurred in the victims apartment. He also wounded another small daughter of Mrs. Witchell before attempting suicide.

CONTINUE TRACTOR TESTS

University Engineers Carrying Out Provisions Intended to Protect Purchasers.

The Nebraska tractor testing law is still in force and the testing of all new models of tractors to be sold in Nebraska is progressing as rapidly as the tractors are submitted for test before the board of testing engineers at the agricultural college. No tractor can be sold in the state without first being tested by this board and the dealer having a permit to sell it. Informatino concerning tractors tested in 1920-21 and 22 is available in bulletin form and can be secured from the agricultural extension service, Lincoln.

Nebraska is the only state which has conducted such a test. The engineers say that its value both to farmers and to the manufacturers can be proven. Of the eighty-six machines which completed the tests in the past three years only sixteen went thru without some change in mechanism or specification. Forty-seven tractors attempted the test, but could not complete it and are not being sold in Nebraska. In 1920 anly 15.4 per cent of the machines tested completed the test as originally specified while in 1922, 80 per cent of them did. The increase of 29.2 per cent in fuel economy of kerosene tractors of 1922 model over the same tractor of 1920 model also showed how the manufacturers have been helped in making their tractor a more efficient machine thru the requirement of passing this test.

MAUGHAN OFF FOR ST. JOE

Preparing For Dawn to Dark Dash Across Continent, Hopes to Make Cheyenne by 6 P. M.

DAYTON, O., June 15.—Lieut. Russell Maughan, crossing the continent by easy "hops" preparatory to his dawn-to-dark dash from New York to San Francisco, took off from McCook field for St. Joseph, Mo., early today.

A few minutes later his plane was sighted over Dayton traveling west at approximately 100 miles an hour.

Breakfast in Dayton at 6 a. m., dinner in St. Joseph at noon and possibly supper in Cheyenne, Wyo., at 6 p. m. was Maughan's program today.

Maughan was delayed in his start yesterday by a sudden rain storm and high wind.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 15.—An airplane believed that of Lieutenant Russell Maughan was sighted by observers near Fort Benjamin Harrison this morning, aviation officials at the fort announced.

Maughan, mapping his route for a dawn to darkness flight, is believed to have completely over central Indiana and is now well into Illinois. Army officials said the machine was flying high and at a speed that will place it in St. Joseph, Mo., by noon.

The Secret of Having Beautiful Hair

Beautiful hair—hair that is soft and silky—adds more than anything else to your attractiveness and charm.

Beautiful hair is not a matter of luck, it is simply a matter of care.

You can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly. Proper shampooing is what brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Your hair simply needs frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, but it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali, in ordinary soap, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why leading motion picture stars and millions of women, everywhere, use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo.

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a four ounce bottle lasts for months.

LI YUAN HUNG PLANS COMEBACK TO POWER

Arranging to Recall Resignation and Will Try to Reestablish Himself as President of North China.

PEKING, June 15.—Ex-President Li Yuan Hung, who fled from Peking and resigned his office upon threat of a mutiny of the army, is now arranging to recall his resignation.

Li Yuan Hung declares he will continue his fight and will seek to re-establish himself in power.

The ex-president is telling wild tales about the manner in which he was forced out of office. He declares that the police conspired with his servants in refusing to give him food or water, which is untrue, because visitors had lunch and tea with him daily after the militarists announced they would no longer support him.

Reports that Li Yuan Hung was captured by opposition troops are untrue. Upon his arrival at Tientsin after his flight from Peking the provincial governor welcomed him with a bodyguard and explained that Peking officials were anxiously inquiring about the great seals of China. The governor advised the fugitives president to surrender them.

This the president did upon counsel of John Ferguson, his American adviser. Li Yuan Hung agreed to remain at the Tientsin railway station until his concubine in Peking had delivered the seals which he was hiding.

When this was done, he proceeded home accompanied by Ferguson.

Parliament is being urged to elect a new president Saturday but it is likely to act so quickly. The cabinet, according to custom, has invited the ex-president to return to Peking but he has refused.

PLAN MODEL HOSPITALS

Director Hines States Veterans' Institutions to Be Made Examples For World.

WASHINGTON, June 15. — United States veterans' hospitals are to be made "models for the world," Director Hines, of the veterans' bureau, said today in announcing a conference here Monday, with commanding medical officers of all veterans' hospitals in the country.

Elimination of temporary buildings, establishment of uniformity of treatment, wiping out of regional lines so that now vacant beds may be available for veterans unable to get care in their own districts and a program of establishing hospitals in the future on the basis of actual needs will be considered at the conference.

Mrs. Spann Gained 31 Lbs. By Taking Tanlac

Declares It Overcame Indigestion Entirely—Can Eat Anything She Wants Now Without Suffering, She States.

"If a million people asked me about Tanlac I would gladly praise it to them all," declared Mrs. Ivah M Spann, 332 North 22nd St., Lincoln, Neb.

"At the time I got Tanlac I weighed only a hundred and fourteen pounds, and I think I was the most miserable woman in Lincoln. However, I now weigh a hundred and forty-five pounds and am feeling better than I have in years. I had stomach trouble so bad most everything I ate would cause me unspeakable torture from indigestion gas on my stomach, heartburn, palpitation and cramps. At times these attacks were so bad I thought sure it would be the end of me.

"Well, my friends often stop me on the streets now to compliment me on my good health. I eat everything I want, even onions and beans, and nothing hurts me. It is more than remarkable the way Tanlac has restored my health and I am grateful beyond words."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

RAILROADS TO PRESENT PLAN

TWO-FOLD SOLUTION OF TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

Willard Declares if Present Law is Allowed to Stand Service and Rates to Be Better Than Anywhere Else.

By Lawrence Martin.

WASHINGTON June 15.—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, today confirmed an statement by the United Press yesterday that the country's railroads would present a two-fold solution of their own for the transportation problem to offset both the administration's consolidation plan and the progressive's demands for more stringent governmental control.

In a letter to the writer, Willard asserted that "the railroad problem is very rapidly solving itself under the terms of the existing transportation act" and declared if the present law is allowed to stand, the railroad's answer to demands for changes in the law will be:

1.—A record of more effective service than ever before in the country's history.

2.—Lower rates than those charged anywhere else in the world.

"Personally I am quite confident," Willard wrote, "that if the transportation act of 1920 is left in its present form for a reasonable period, the railroads will be satisfactorily able to overcome the difficulties brought about by the war.

"It is apparent that the car shortage which existed a short time since has practically appeared and the efforts which the railroads are making to put their existing equipment in the best possible condition, together with large purchases of new equipment, should and I believe, will enable them to meet the transportation requirements of the coming fall in a manner that will be generally satisfactory.

"The labor problem also seems to be in process of adjustment."

He said that the rates are now actually higher than in 1914, they are relatively lower. Living costs are from 60 to 64 per cent higher than in 1914 while railroad rates are 54 per cent higher, Willard said.

ROYALISTS TRYING TO ERECT THRONE

Plans to put France once more under a monarchial form of government became known following mysterious attacks on social leaders in Paris. The storm center is M. Louis Philip Robert, duke of Orleans, a member of the once powerful Bourbon family. He is now an exile in Belgium. If his plot had been successful he was to have been King Philip VIII.

MRS. CROKER WINS CASE

Jury Returns Verdict in Favor of Widow of Late Tammany Chieftain.

DUBLIN, June 15.—The jury in the Croker will case today returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Bula Croker.

The verdict also absolved Mrs. Croker from having to pay any of the costs of the trial.

Richard Croker, jr., and other heirs brought suit to break the will of the late boss of Tammany Hall, under which his fortune was left to his second wife. Bula, a former Oklahoma girl of indian ancestry.

The contestants alleged that Bula had been married to Guy Marone and Northampton, Mass., tailor and that she wed Croker without getting a divorce from Marone.

It was further alleged that Bula had influenced the "boss" in his declining years to cut off his children by his first wife.

Witnesses were produced to testify that Bula and Marone lived together in Massachusetts, and that in her private conversations with Croker she said things calculated to poison his mind against his children.

In his summing up of the case, the lord chief justice who presided pointed out that there was no proof that Bula had ever been married to Marone, and that therefore there was no ground for the allegation that her marriage to Croker was illegal.

Attorneys for Bula attacked the contesting heirs charging that after they had been defeated in America in one attempt to blacken her character, they transferred the scene of action to Ireland where she was among strangers.

Overtures That aFiled.

March 6, 1862, Lincoln, in a message to congress, recommended the following joint resolution which was passed: "Resolved, That the United States ought to co-operate with any state which may adopt gradual abolishment, giving to such state pecuniary aid, to be used by such state in its discretion, to compensate for the inconvenience public or private, produced by such change in system."

Lincoln proposed to Delaware which remained loyal, that the government pay $400 each or a total of $179,000 for freedom of slaves in that state but the Delaware legislature refused to consider the proposal. Similar offers were made to other states with similar results. In December, 1862, Lincoln recommended congress propose an amendment to the constitution providing compensation in bonds for every state which should abolish slavery before the year 1900. But the slave states showed no willingness to accept such an offer and the matter was dropped.

In the same year an act passed congress for the immediate abolishment of slavery in the District of Columbia. Compensation was distributed by commission. The whole amount paid owners in the district did not exceed an average of $300 for each slave.—Detroit News.

BOUND OVER ON CHECK CHARGE

Alleged to Have Written No Fund Check for $700.

Etta W. Russell was bound over to the present term of district court by Justice of Peace Hawes Friday morning on a charge of writing a no fund check for $700. She had waived preliminary hearing. She was released on $1,000 bond with Harry E. Mason as surety. Mrs. Russell was brought from Salem, Neb., Sunday night by Constable Immenhausen. She pleaded innocence when arraigned Monday. It is charged that on May 26 she drew and delivered to the Lincoln State National bank a check for $700 on the Nebraska Moon Motor Co. The complaint alleges that she knew that she had no sufficient funds in the bank to cover the payment of the check.

Better Health For Women

Any woman who will stop and consider the result of a questionnaire recently sent out by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., will in all fairness admit the value of this old-fashioned root and herb medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Fifty thousand replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 women stated they had been benefited or restored to health by its use. This means better health for American women. It will surely pay any woman who suffers from any ailment or weakness peculiar to her sex to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.—Advertisement.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

STATE NOW OUT OF RED

TREASURER ROBINSON WIPES OUT BIG OVERDRAFT.

General Fund Which Was Overdrawn $831,544 First of June Now Contains Balance of $100,000.

State Treasurer Robinson found the treasury out of the "red" Thursday. He has heard so much from pessimists about the state being in the "red" and dire predictions of plunges deeper into that color in the future that he was much pleased to find the state general fund $100,000 out of the "red." This fund was overdrawn $831,544 the first of June. Since then remittances have been large, $1,400,000 having been received in four days.

In addition to placing the general fund on a cash basis the state treasurer has bought $573,000 of bonds with soldier relief funds since the first of the month, completing the investment of the $2,000,000 appropriated by the legislature for that purpose two years ago.

It has been charged for some time that the treasurer is doing business with capitol funds. The first of the month he had $1,964,685 in that fund, but the overdraft on the general fund has been wiped out and it is the hope of the treasurer that he can keep the general fund out of the "red." When there is no money in that fund the treasurer cashes general fund warrants with other state funds on hand which are not being used. This prevents state warrants from being discounted and keeps them at par value.

Next Saturday Treasurer Robinson will close the temporary school fund account and turn the money over to the state superintendent to be apportioned according to law. By waiting until the end of the month he might swell this fund to $700,000. By closing the account Saturday it will probably amount to $675,000. This will be the largest semi-annual apportionment ever made in the history of the state. This fund is derived principally from interest on about $12,000,000 of permanent school funds invested in bonds and from rentals on lands owned by the state. The temporary school fund is distributed direct to schools for the payment of school expenses.

When news goes out that receipts are large the state treasurer receives many applications from banks for time deposits which draw 4 per cent. He finds he cannot comply with all requests of that nature, but he hopes to keep $2,000,000 in banks which will net the state $80,000 a year interest.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Miss Hansa Mehta, daughter of the prime minister of Baroda, India, who is making a study of American colleges with a view to improving the curricula of Indian universities, was the guest of honor at a tea given Thursday afternoon at the executive mansion by the American association of university women. The tea was open to any women interested in educational work for foreign women. About a hundred and fifty were present. In the receiving line with Miss Mehta were Mrs. Charles Bryan, Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, president of the association, Mrs. Frank Woods, Mrs. Philo M. Buck and Mrs. Fred Eiche. Miss Mehta addressed the guests briefly and informally. She explained that the educational effort for women in India needs to be directed not so much to the cultural as to home-making studies. Opportunities to study domestic science, nursing, and similar subjects need to be increased, she believes.

"One has to come to America to hear about caste," she declared when questioned as to how educated women in India regard caste restrictions. "In our schools girls and women of all religions and castes sit in the same classes without thought of distinction."

Tea was served after Miss Mehta's talk. Mrs. Ernest Folsom and Mrs. John M. Stuart poured the first hour and Mrs. Samuel Avery and Mrs. W. W. Whitfield the second. Mrs. Charles Roberts, Mrs. J. J. Snipes, Miss Olive Wallace, Miss Clare McPhee, Dr. Laura B. Pfeiffer and Mrs. W. L. Albin assisted. Those who served were the Misses Frances and Marjorie Barstow, Betty Scribner, Dorothy Colburn, Ruth Lindsay, Dorothy Pierce of Orleans, Mary Louise Bryan, Madeline Girard, Caroline Buck and Helen Cochran.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Easterday entertained at dinner at the country club Thursday evening. Baskets of spring garden flowers formed the decorations on the tables where places were arranged for thirty-five guests. The evening was spent at bridge. Mrs. Dale Drain of Washington, D. C., was an out-of-town guest.

Mary Jane Righter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Righter, 904 Sumner street, was operated on for appendicitis at the Lincoln Sanitarium Thursday, and is reported as getting along nicely.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Carpenter are visiting in LeMars, Ia. The doctor will address a homecoming of the Union church at LeMars.

Miss Lucylle Hensel entertained twelve guests Tuesday evening at her home, 2430 B street at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Mac L. Smock, formerly Miss Doris Fleming, a recent bride. During the evening tea towels were hemmed for the bride. Miss Hensel served refreshments assisted by her mother, Mrs J. E. Hensel and Mrs Gertrude Krepps, mother of Mrs. Smock.

MERE MENTION

Mrs. F. T. Williams, 2145 Vine, reported to police that someone stripped her clothesline of washing Thursday afternoon.

Christine O'Donnel was granted a decree of divorce from her husband, Albert H. O'Donnel, in District Judge Morning's court Thursday. She charged him with abandonment and failure to provide.

Gilbert D. Robertson has filed a petition in district court for divorce from Hazel Robertson, charging extreme cruelty and abuse, that she called him names and struck him. They were married in St. Joseph, Mo., in 1920. There are no children.

Ruth Bryan has filed petition in the district court asking for a divorce from her husband, Gordon A. Bryan, in which she charges extreme cruelty, abandonment and failure to support. She asks a restoration of her maiden name of Stevens. Her husband, she alleges, is now in Colorado.

L. W. Chase, 1245 North Twenty-third, and Bryan Literil, 512 Bankers' Life, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Officers Meyers and Beals on charges of violating the two-hour parking ordinance. They are to appear Friday in police court.

Ralph O. Long, a twenty-one-year-old electrician of Syracuse, N. Y. "flopped" at the police station Thursday night at the end of his fifty-third day's journey to the western coast. He started on May 2, he said, and walked as far as Cleveland, O. From there on, he has accepted rides from tourists. Work in the east is much poorer paid than in the west and it is not at all hard for a clean-looking young man to make his way, Mr. Long said.

FARM HAND SUES FOR $709

Rudolph Lou Declares Scribner State Bank Seized Property Which Belonged to Him.

FREMONT, Neb., June 14.—An interesting case opened in district court Thursday morning. Theo Schaff, a hired hand, who was in the employ on the farm of Rudolph Lou, seeks judgment of $709 from the Scribner State bank, claiming that the bank has seized property that actually belonged to him. The bank, it is said, received an assignment of all property belonging to Rudolph Lou, because Lou was unable to pay $7,000 worth of notes, when they fell due. All of Lou's property was sold by the bank and it is alleged that $2,500 was realized from such sale. The bank applied the amount on the notes.

Schaff says that there was an understanding when the assignment was mad eby Lou that the $700 coming to him would be taken care of. But the bank has refused to pay him. His wages, he says, were worthy of first consideration under the law, ahead of the claims of the bank.

The damage suit for $10,000, filed by Dr. James Agee, former city physician, against Deputy Sheriff W. A. Lowry, growing out of the arrest of Dr. Agee during an altercation in a local meat market, will probably come up for trial during the week. It occupies a place on the docket after the Schaff-Scribner bank case.

VETERANS IN FUND DRIVE

Disabled Service Men Hope to Raise $2,000 Saturday Thru Sals of Tags.

Lincoln chapter of Disabled American Veterans of the World War will hold a drive in Lincoln for local members of the organization Saturday. The members hope to get at least $2,000. The ladies' auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will do the active work Saturday, tagging on the downtown streets. If enough funds are not secured in this way, house to house soliciting will be undertaken. The Disabled American Veterans were a little late in their efforts to join the community chest this year, hence the necessity of another of their annual drives. They hope to become a part of that movement when the next community chest drive is made, thus doing away with the necessity for a special drive.

There are about 1,000 more or less disabled soldiers in Lincoln. Some of these do not belong to the Disabled American Veterans, and the chief work of the chapter at present is to help these men in getting their claims thru. Of these 1,000 men, about 400 have been brought in from towns in the state for vocational training. H. E. Darnold is state commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

MEMBERS OF BOARD ARE WELL PLEASED

Low Bid on Proposed Hospital Is Considered Satisfactory and Construction to Be Under Way Very Soon.

Members of the city hospital board and of the council expressed gratification over the low bid of $218,165 for the building of the proposed new hospital. There was a range of $62,835 between nine bids, four of which were above the engineer's estimate of $250,000. The contract probably will be let Monday and Ernest Rokahr and Sons, builders of the Security Mutual building, may receive assignment. This firm was low with a bid $9,735 less than the second low bid. Certified checks were returned to the four firms bidding in excess of the estimate. A member of the firm submitting the low bid stated that work will begin very soon and should be completed within nine or ten working months.

The hospital board will meet on Saturday and probably will submit a recommendation at Monday's council meeting. It is probable that consideration will be given to possible elimination at this time of certain alternate items in order that no obligation be made without there being available funds on hand to meet it. It is possible, according to Architect Ellery Davis, that this may mean delay in completion of the third floor. At present the board has $263,000 available. The bid of Rokahr and Sons plus items not included in the specifications such as heating, pumbing, wiring, elevators, hardware and lighting fixtures reach a total of $279,165 or approximately $16,000 more than is now available. The figures on plumbing and the other items being based on the following estimates of Mr. Davis:

Heating, plumbing and wiring	$47,000
Elevators	7,500
Hardware	3,500
Lighting fixtures	3,000
Total	$61,000

It appears probable that the contract, when signed, will call for less money than is specified in the low bid. Mr. Davis estimates a reduction of $14,000 if decision is made to allow the third floor to carry the sacrifice burden. The board may find other items for temporary elimination which, it is said, may lower the bid to approximately $169,000.

The inheritance tax on the bequest of the late R. E. Moore, was paid out of the building fund. It amounted to approximately $23,000. When the fund is reimbursed the board will be in a position to go ahead with any items temporarily erased. And because of a determination to meet the situation in a practical way, it is probable that the signed contract will call for a lesser figure.

It is considered probable that by the time the third floor is ready for the plastering, sufficient funds will be available to proceed. And the same is true of such other items as may be temporarily held back. Board members are said to be disinclined to tie themselves to a contract in excess of the amount they can meet with funds now available. This third floor, when completed, will contain thirty of the 100 hospital beds. It is said to be a typical room floor. If necessary, according to the architect, completion may be postponed without interfering with hospital efficiency.

The bid of $218,165 not only covers construction of the building proper but includes construction of drives, sidewalks and built-in equipment, such as lockers and cupboards. The cost of such equipment being estimated at $7,000.

In connection with heating and plumbing, it is possible that contracts may be awarded in the immediate future. According to the architect, prices on these furnishings have advanced to practically a war-time scale.

LIGHTNING INJURES NORTH BEND WOMAN

Bad Electrical Storm at Fremont Hinders Traffic and Interference With Operation of Power and Light.

FREMONT, Neb., June 14.—Storm and lightning damage, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain hit this vicinity shortly before noon today, resulting in the probable death of one woman struck by lightning, delays to rail traffic and the absence of power and light in the city of Fremont for over an hour.

Lightning struck a guy wire in the heart of the business district, causing a short circuit that cut off lights and power in the business section. Early editions of local newspapers were delayed and district court, now in session, was forced to resort to candle light.

Chicago and Northwestern trains from the northwest were delayed from one to three hours by heavy rains and the fear of washouts. Over one and one-half inches of rain fell along the Northwestern line, local officials reported. In Fremont .66 inches had fallen up to noon.

B. J. Boyer, plumber, of West Point, was nearly buried alive in a nine-foot sewer at that place Wednesday, according to reports reaching here today. Boyer was working with a crew in repairing the sewer when the sides suddenly caved in, burying him up to the neck. Workmen affected a speedy rescue. Boyer suffered a dislocated shoulder and minor bruises as a result of his close call.

NORFOLK, Neb., June 14.—Nearly an inch and a half of rain, falling in a little more than an hour, flooded streets here and started streams in this vicinity to rising. The heavy rain did not extend further west than Oakdale nor farther north than Creighton and the railroads do not expect flood conditions. The rain was heavy south and east of here and considerable damage was done to cornfields which were badly washed.

DEWITT, Neb., June 14.—A half inch of rain fell here Thursday morning in one hour. The roads and fields had hardly become workable after the last rain three days ago, and are soaked again. Corn is making very fair growth in this vicinity in spite of cloudy weather, but is very weedy and farmers are unable to get in their fields. It is reported a heavier fall occurred at Wilber, and all along the territory west to Edgar, measuring two and one-half inches at Shickley and Ong.

Manager Sellars has contracted with a number of entertainers and other good ones are under consideration. Concession people are beginning to arrive to select their locations and the big show advance agent was in town to lay out the grounds. Special arrangement has been made for elaborate lighting of the pavilion grounds from the city switchboard. A dancing pavilion has been let and music will be furnished by a jazz quintet. Rooms at the hotels are fast being reserved and a special call has been made for private parties to report rooms for rent.

CLOSE TAKING OF TESTIMONY IN CASE

Stocker Alienation Suit for Fifty Thousand Probably Will Be Given to Jury Sometime Today.

The taking of testimony in the Stocker case in which Gussie Stocker seeks $50,000 damages from her mother-in-law, Mrs. Harriet Stocker for alienating the affections of her husband T. R. P. Stocker, was finished shortly before five o'clock Thursday afternoon. Both sides have rested their cases and but the closing arguments remain before the case will be given to the jury.

Reggie Stocker resumed the stand in the afternoon and in his testimony regarding the manner in which he was received by his wife after their separation, when she had gone to her home in Auburn, said that his wife told him that she no longer felt the same toward him as she had formerly felt and that she didn't miss him as much. He said that when he called at her home on the second evening of his stay in Auburn that she received him as coldly as she would receive a stranger. When he plead with her to return home with him she refused, saying that she wanted to have the privilege of entertaining her friends in her home if she went back with him. This statement he branded as a sham and wholly without foundation.

The first service will be held Friday at 3 p. m. Rev. N. R. Throckmorton of University Place is the secretary and J. W. Thomas of 2026 South Eighteenth street is superintendent of the grounds. Either can be reached at his home or Friday at the grounds. Admission is free.

STRIKES RADIO STATION

Wesleyan Plant Will Be Out of Commission For a Few Days For Repairs.

During the thunder storm Thursday morning, lightning struck the antenna used for transmitting at the Radio Station WCAJ and split the insulator at the lead in end, causing the wire to fall to the ground. That the stroke was a strong one was shown by the fact that the blade of a 100 ampere lightning switch was fused by the current rushing to the ground so that it could not be opened.

The presence of the antenna intercepted and grounded the heavy surge first which would otherwise have struck the power and telephone lines. Prof. J. C. Jensen says that the radio station will be out of service for a few days until repaired.

FARRELL IS FREE FROM ALL BLAME

Father of Victim of the Auto Said He Thought Car Was Driven on the Wrong Side of the Street.

That Ruth Gunn, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Gunn, 642 North Thirty-fourth street, came to her death at 5 p. m. Wednesday by being struck by an auto driven by Lawrence Farrell, 2020 South street, the accident being absolutely unavoidable and the driver is exonerated from all blame, was the verdict of the coroner's jury reached after a few minutes' deliberations following an inquest at Castle, Roper and Matthews' undertaking parlors at 5 p. m. Thursday.

Nine witnesses testified and were questioned by Assistant County Attorney L. R. Doyle, who conducted the inquest. Several said on the stand that Farrell's auto was going about ten miles an hour. LaVerne Lamb, ten years old, a witness of the tragedy and playmate of the victim, said that she took his little express wagon and coasted down the driveway out into the middle of the street, and then the crash occurred. He said that the children had been coasting down the driveway with their coasters and wagons.

Mary Hendricks, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hendricks, 3417 T street, told of hearing Ruth Gunn ask young Lamb for the use of his wagon. She coasted out on to the pavement and turned west when hit. The witness told of the left front wheel of the car passing over the head of the victim, who was lying in front of a rear wheel when the machine had stopped.

Mrs. B. C. Hendricks, who was sitting on her porch at 3417 T street when the accident occurred, told of the driver lifting the injured girl from the pavement and carrying her into the Hendricks' house. Mrs. Fred Stephenson estimated that the auto was going ten miles an hour. She told of hearing the crash and seeing the girl being lifted from beneath the auto. Chris Bennett said that the auto skidded for about six feet. He was sitting in an auto parked on the north side of the street. He saw the Farrell car before it hit the child. He estimated its speed at ten miles an hour.

John L. Dinsmore, motorman of an East S street car, was crossing the intersection at Thirty-fourth and T streets, and witnessed the accident a quarter of a block away from him. He said that he saw the child in the wagon shoot down the driveway into the street and in front of the auto.

"The auto was on the wrong side of the street," stated E. S. Gunn, father of the victim, when on the stand. "The bumper apparently hit her on the head and caused the skull fracture." Mr. Gunn told of visiting the scene of the accident shortly after it occurred. "It appeared to me that the auto skidded off to the side of the street and the driver must have been talking to someone else in the car," he said. Detective N. F. Schneible, who investigated the accident, told of his observations on reaching the scene. Jesse Smith, 926 South Twenty-ninth, who was sitting in his auto which was parked on the north side of T street, saw Farrell's auto immediately before the tragedy. He said that the car did not move over five feet after it struck. Terry Williams was riding in the heavy touring car with Mr. Farrell. The driver appeared greatly grieved while at the inquest. Mr. Williams is grief-stricken and confined at a local hospital.

The jurors were: Herbert Hayes, William Waugh, Charles Moon, Bert H. Stephenson, T. A. Gillaspie, and M. W. Frank.

BEATRICE MILLIONAIRE IS ILL

Recovery of William H. Bookwalter a Matter of Doubt.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., June 14.—William H. Bookwalter of Beatrice, for many years a resident of Pawnee county, is critically ill at his home in that city and his relatives have been sent for, as his recovery seems to be quite doubtful. A few years ago, his brother John W. Bookwalter of Springfield, O., died, leaving his brother a fortune of several million dollars. Mr. Brookwalter, thinking a million sufficient for him, presented each of his seven or eight children a million, leaving him still a millionaire. Bookwalter, Neb., was named in his honor as he owned several thousand acres of land in that vicinity.

LINCOLN ELKS WIN A CUP

McPharland Trophy Taken by Local Lodge From North Platte at McCook Convention.

McCOOK, Neb., June 14.—The Nebraska state convention of the benevolent and protective order of Elks opened here today with an address of welcome by Mayor Frank Beal and response by President W. W. Jenne of Falls City. The outstanding feature of the afternoon session was the celebration of flag day, an impressive service of splendid details, patriotic addresses by Congressman Edgar Howard of Columbus, Dan Butler and Mr. Dysart of Omaha adding to the brilliant ritualistic service. About seventy-five candidates were initiated in the afternoon there being a contest between the officials of the North Platte and Lincoln lodges in which North Platte lost the McFarland loving cup to Lincoln lodge. Eleven Nebraska lodges are represented in the convention. A complimentary show and blackhand work in the theater closed the program of the opening day. Tomorrow a parade, barbeque concert, address by Past Grand Exalted Ruler Frank L. Rain of Fairbury, and a grand pavement dance in the city park will conclude the two day session.

Grand Island—What is generally regarded as the strongest law firm ever organized in the city is that of Horth, Ryan, Cleary and Suhr. Mr Horth is one of the oldest and ablest attorneys in the central part of the state. Mr. Ryan is also well known and was formerly president of the Nebraska State Bar association. Former Mayor Cleary and County Attorney Suhr are younger but each have a strong clientele. Larger office rooms will be secured at once in the Ryan building.

ZANKOF SAYS VICTORY HIS

DECLARES STAMBOULISKY'S RESISTANCE IS FEEBLE.

New Government Enjoys Confidence of the Country, Asserts Acting Premier of Bulgaria.

By Professor H. Zankof
Acting Premier and Foreign Minister of Bulgaria.

SOFIA, June 14.—(By Wireless via Sofia.)—Our army has easily suppressed the feeble, isolated resistance of former Premier Stamboulisky's partisans.

The country is everywhere calm. Communication by railway, telephone and telegraph has been reestablished.

The army now is being used only to maintain order and to parry attempts of Stamboulisky's followers.

The new government enjoys the confidence of the country.

There is no connection between the so-called Macedonian movement and that which resulted in the fall of Stamboulisky.

The change of the government was the result of discontent and oppression. The new government's foreign policy is peaceful.

We will maintain the best of relations with our neighboring countries and especially with the great powers.

Bulgaria will continue to fulfill her international obligations, particularly the treaty of Neuilly, and will avoid disturbing the peace of the Balkans.

In view of conflicting stories regarding conditions in Bulgaria, the United Press wirelessed Professor Zankof, head of the new revolutionary government, asking for a statement regarding the exact state of affairs. The above message was sent from Sofia by wireless late yesterday afternoon.

Overtures That Failed.

In voting virtual condemnation of Dr. Fosdick's preaching the Presbyterian general assembly has voted condemnation of progress in religious thought. It has decided that, so far as it can control the human mind, there shall be no reinterpretation of religious doctrine. What is believed to have been believed two thousand years ago shall continue to be believed. Religion, in this view, comes perilously close to being a set of mathematical formulae. No question was raised as to the spiritual value of Dr Fosdick's message. Nobody suggested that under the influence of his teaching people were becoming more selfish, more deeply engrossed in things that perish with the using. The accusation brought against him is that he does not present certain doctrines as they are officially held—held, that is, if the vote is an indication on this point, by 439 Presbyterians out of ev-798. This does not seem like a conclusive showing for doctrines are as hard and fast as a geometrical theorem, but either the vote Indianapolis means that forty-five cent of the representatives of the sbyterian church think as Dr. Fos- thinks about these doctrines or it means that they are willing for to think differently about them out paying the penalty of expul- from Presbyterian pulpits—which the eyes of fundamentalists comes to the same thing.

If Christ had taken the view of the wish creed that literalists of all ages have taken of the Christian creed, there would have been no Christian creed. Instead of conforming to the letter of the doctrines which prevailed in his day, he insisted upon examining the meaning of those doctrines and applying them in accordance with the highest significance that they possessed. The letter killeth, he said; the spirit giveth life. That the utterances of the Messiah or concerning him should become petrified like the regulations of the Pharisees which he denounced is one of the ironies of history. Christianity owes its spread in no small measure to the fact that it developed a marvelous adaptability. It conquered paganism by absorption as well as by destruction. It was nothing if not alive, as it would have been nothing if it had not been alive. This living and growing plant Mr. Bryan and those who hold with him would keep just as it is. "Stop where you are," they say. "If you grow you will lose your sacredness." This is a fatal course. If truth cannot grow inside the church it will climb over the wall. A stagnant theology does not make for a healthy religious life.—New York Evening Post.

DICKY TAKES A SAIL WITH GOCOMEBACK.

"OH, pshaw!" mumbled Dicky when his mother called him from his ball game. "I just hate to carry milk. I can't see why——"

"Neither can I," laughed a merry voice, and Gocomeback, the little travel elfin, hopped down beside Dicky. "If you could see the way a little friend of mine has to deliver his milk, you might have some cause to complain. But, pshaw! all you have to do is to carry the pails to your neighbors."

"I can't see any other way they carry it," laughed Dicky. The sight of the wee elfin always changed Dicky's frowns to smiles. "Where does he live?"

Without a word, Gocomeback took Dicky's hand, and before Dicky could ask any more questions he found himself sailing through the air beside the little elfin.

Over the mountains and seas they sped, and when they once more lighted on the ground it was in a strange land.

"That yonder in the distance," said Gocomeback, pointing to the spire and steeples, "is Naples."

"My goodness!" Dicky exclaimed. "We're in Italy then, aren't we?"

"Indeed we are," replied Gocomeback, "and I brought you to the outskirts of Naples on purpose, so you can meet my little friend. We'll most likely find him on the streets here pretty soon."

The little street up which they started

"He Started Up the Stairway."

was no wider than an alley, for it was only about six feet wide. Clothes-lines filled with clothes were stretched from one window to another.

"My goodness! Such a crowd of folks," Dicky laughed. "And so many goats. Whom do they belong to, anyway?"

Just then a little Italian boy came running up to Gocomeback and shook hands with him. Gocomeback introduced him to Dicky as the little milk-boy.

"I suppose you've finished carrying your milk by now," exclaimed Dicky. "I just hate to carry the milk. Do you?"

"Carry it!" laughed the little milk-boy. "My goodness, I never think of carrying it. We don't have to in this town."

"Then how in the world do you deliver your milk?" asked Dicky in astonishment.

"I'll show you," the little milk-boy laughed, and gave a sharp peculiar whistle. A little goat not very far off came running up to his master's side. The milk-boy started up a stairway. Dicky, Gocomeback and the goat followed him. He rapped on the door and the lady handed him a pan, and right then and there he milked that goat and delivered the milk.

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed Dicky, nearly doubled up laughing. "I never heard of such a thing. It's lucky folks in this neighborhood don't insist on cows' milk."

"Isn't that funny!" Dicky laughed, when they once more landed back home. "You're right, Gocomeback. I'll never complain again. I like my way better."

And bidding his elfin friend good-by, Dicky went whistling off to deliver his milk.

SISTER'S SUMMER FROCKS

Colors and Materials Offer Varied Choice

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

THERE are so many fascinating materials and patterns this season that fond mothers long to evolve more frocks than their little ones really need. But let me warn you not to make too many, for little children outgrow tub frocks so quickly!

There are linens and ginghams and dimities and crepe de chines, and they all come in such alluring colors.

While crepe de chine may not be practical for the very little girl, her 12-year-old sister will be so proud of real crepe de chine that she's sure to treat it with loving care. For dress-up occasions, why not let her wear a plain dark blue pleated skirt of this material, with a dainty overblouse of white, printed in little blue flower sprays?

The little tot of six is adorable in green linen, a fresh, soft green, with blocks of darker green to form an interesting pattern.

You may develop either of these frocks in your favorite color combinations. Instead of linen you might have plain blue gingham, with checks for the trimming blocks.

YOUR HEALTH

What You Should Consider When Some Muscle Is Sore

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

EVERYBODY has a theory about rheumatism—what causes it, what makes it worse or exactly what it is. The general term "rheumatism" is used to describe several separate and distinct conditions. Perhaps the ailment most commonly known by this name is the one attacking the muscles and called by the doctors "muscular rheumatism."

DR. COPELAND

Lameness or soreness or stiffness of some one or more parts of the body is an all-too-frequent experience of civilized life.

The pain and stiffness may be in the muscles of the back, when it is called "lumbago." The neck may be affected, producing a stiff neck. Sometimes the muscles between the ribs or the muscles of the scalp may bear the brunt of the attack. In the beginning of an attack of muscular rheumatism there may be fever. But sometimes the increase in temperature may be so slight as not to be noticed. Very soon, however, the pain or tenderness will be noticed.

Another form of rheumatism involves the joints. This is called "articular rheumatism." In the acute form it may be a severe, exceedingly painful and sometimes dangerous disease. This is called "rheumatic fever."

It is ushered in by chilliness, fever, redness and swelling of the knees, ankles, wrists or other joints. The symptoms may last for several weeks. Unfortunately, the heart is frequently involved and damage to this organ may be one of the permanent effects.

There is a chronic form of articular rheumatism, in which the joints become stiff and incapable of use.

Sufferers from repeated attacks of rheumatism should not fail to consult the dentist. If he determines it necessary, have an X-ray of the teeth, to see whether there is trouble at the roots. Bad dentistry and neglect of the teeth are important factors in the production of other diseases as well as rheumatism.

Sometimes, what is called "rheumatism of the scalp" may be simply the reflected pain of an eyestrain. Pain in the back of the neck, too, may be due to this cause. In persons about 45 years of age, when the consciousness of the need of glasses has not been aroused, there may be such symptoms. These will disappear speedily after a visit to the oculist.

Bad posture, leaning over a desk and too much effort on one wrist or arm in driving an automobile, are other causes of muscular pain. Badly-fitting shoes with heels too high or too low may cause leg and back strain and pain. Such aches are not rheumatic, but they may be mistaken for rheumatism.

When a sore muscle or joint is discovered, ask yourself how it might have been produced by an unusual effort of some sort. If such a cause cannot be determined, watch the symptom, and, should it persist, consult your physician. He will determine whether or not it is rheumatism and advise regarding treatment.

Answers to Health Questions

L. C. B. Q—I have a lump just below my ankle as the result of a sprained ankle. Will you please advise me what to do for this condition?

A—Take hot foot baths and apply an elastic bandage. If your condition does not improve in a reasonable length of time, consult an orthopedist for further treatment.

* * *

A SUBSCRIBER. Q—Would strained ligaments cause one limb to be much shorter than the other? Would you advise an examination by an orthopedist?

A—Strained ligaments would very likely cause this condition. Consult an orthopedist immediately.

* * *

H. G. Q—Last summer I had an abscess over each eyebrow which left two scars. The surrounding tissues are very thick. What can I do to reduce them?

A—I would suggest that you try massaging the parts with olive oil. This may help to improve the condition.

* * *

M. M. Q—I have freckles and would like to know of a remedy that will make them disappear.

A—Nothing can be done to remove freckles. Applying peroxide cold cream and lemon juice might help to make them less noticeable.

* * *

W. R. W. Q—I have a small inguinal rupture on the right side and use a truss for support. However, I have severe pains around the region of the rupture. Will you please tell me what causes this and whether or not the truss will cure this condition?

A—This is due to the partial escape of the intestines through the enlarged opening. The truss may cure a small hernia in a well-nourished person, but an operation is usually required for a cure.

How to Reduce Your Ankles by an Enjoyable Beauty Drill

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

SO many women seem particularly interested in small, symmetrical ankles in their quest for beauty that I am giving extra attention to this question just now.

Recently I suggested an exercise that is used in many classes devoted to fancy dancing and which is found to work wonders in its effect upon the ankle that is losing its youthful slenderness.

You may have found that exercise a bit difficult at first. The position, you will remember, was to stand with feet as nearly parallel as you could get them, right toe pointing straight out to the right and left toe straight out to the left. You were then to slide right foot out to side, pointing toe. Slide left foot out to side, pointing toe. Alternate.

I am repeating this for the benefit of any one who may not have started doing this exercise, because it is an especially valuable way to attain the slim ankles you desire. Now, here is an additional step which you can combine with the movement just described:

From your position with feet parallel and close together, slide your right foot straight out in front. Let your toe lead the movement. The natural result will be that your heel is raised well off the floor and your arch curved.

Replace your foot at position parallel with your left foot. Do not lift it up to replace, simply slide it.

Repeat the same movement with your left foot. Slide out, hold toe pointed to floor for one count and slide back.

Now that you have the slide and forward movement, you can alternate the two.

I may add that counting is not compulsory. If you find it easier to count do so. If not, you can easily fall into the rhythm of the movement and counting will be unnecessary.

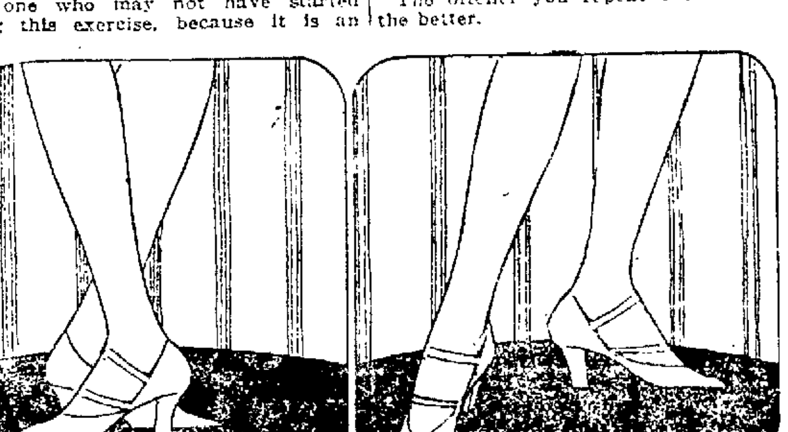

Of course, if you can have some one play a good fox-trot on the piano, or if you can play one on a phonograph, so much the better.

And, believe me, my dears, a lovely ankle is such an asset that anything so pleasant as this exercise which furthers such a desirable result is mere child's play. When you get into the swing of the exercise you will positively enjoy it.

And, another thing, remember to watch the curve of your ankle at the back, just above your heel.

This is where the slenderizing effect first seems to be noticeable.

The oftener you repeat the exercise the better.

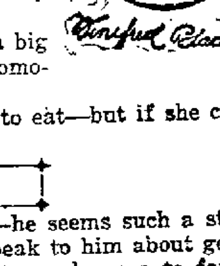

Assume This Position, Then Slide Your Foot Like This.

We are often told there is comparatively little that can be done to slenderize an ankle that lacks the slender lines of grace. I believe that just as much can be done to reduce your ankle as any other particular part of your body, and I believe as in all exercises, perseverance is the main factor for success. I have seen ankles made more slender by much walking and careful exercise, and I consider this exercise I have given you one of the best to beautify your ankles.

There is no secret—perseverance is the key. Try to select the same time for the exercise each day, say some convenient hour in the morning, when you feel fresh and can put every energy into it.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Success and Happiness

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

MRS. SALLIE WHITE of San Francisco, California, says she was happy as a queen when she and her husband lived in a little $40 a month flat and she did her own work, and every Saturday night they had dinner down-town and went to the movies and had an ice cream soda afterward and then spent Sunday afternoon talking over their Saturday night party.

But now her husband is rich and she lives in a big house and has three servants and there's an automobile and everything—but she isn't happy at all.

She doesn't like the things her cook gives her to eat—but if she complains the cook will leave—and that will never do.

Everything Is Changed

And she's dreadfully afraid of the chauffeur—he seems such a stern man and has such a way of frowning when you speak to him about going down a country road or up a lane somewhere that you happen to fancy.

And when she lived in the $40 flat she had lots of comfortable neighbors.

Mrs. Smith on the floor above used to run in every Wednesday morning and tell her what was in the letter she got from her daughter in New York.

Mrs. Johnson on the floor below had twins, and the things those twins did—day in and day out, why it was a regular movie!

And Mrs. Sullivan across the hall had a son who made pictures for the movies, and every once in a while he came round for dinner and to spend the evening and the tales he told about the actors and actresses—well, it was as good as a play, that's all there was to it!

But here the people on the other side of Mrs. White's grand new house never even speak to her. And as for knowing the people across the street, their house has been closed and boarded up for six months, and Mrs. White knows perfectly well that when they come home from Europe they'll never think of running over with some nice snapshots of things on the other side of the ocean.

But the worst of it all is her husband.

He's cross and cranky and he's never pleased with what Mrs. White wears or how she wears it. He hates her hat and he makes fun of her dresses, and the other day he asked her where she got that style of wearing her hair.

He said it made her look like somebody's great-grandmother come out of the Ark.

And he's hardly ever at home. But when he is, he acts as if he wishes he wasn't and he's always telephoning and telegraphing and sitting in his grand new library figuring and frowning, and Mrs. Sallie White wants a divorce—for she says she'd rather go back home to her mother and remember her husband the way he used to be when they were poor and happy, than to live with him now and be miserable.

You Never Can Tell

I hope Mrs. White will get a separation—and not a divorce—for somehow I feel that after his wife has gone and he's alone in his big expensive house and nobody makes any particular fuss over him, or cares whether he's happy or unhappy, or not—and when he finds what a lot of empty-hearted flatterers there are in the world—and when he overhears some pretty young thing making fun of him for a rich old nobody—

Then I shouldn't be surprised, if he got out Sallie's picture and looked at it and wished that he and she were together again as they used to be when they paid $40 a month for a plain little flat and went to the movies on Saturday night.

And then—maybe. Well, you never can tell.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

Eight Recipes for Attractive Warm-Weather Desserts.

DESSERTS know no closed season, and although the free use of the fresh fruits in season helps out, yet the family always enjoys a made dessert—hot or cold. Good cream—plain or whipped—is always acceptable as a sauce. Yet if it is not to be had, the evaporated cream or thin marshmallow whip makes an agreeable substitute. If the latter is used less sweetening will be needed in the dish itself. A cold dessert should not be taken from the ice box until it is time to serve it in order to have it as refreshing as planned. A fruit pie is good cold with cream, but it should never be chilled, because chilling makes the crust soggy.

Rhubarb Pudding.

Beat two cupfuls of stewed rhubarb—thick, but not too sweet—into a pint of freshly-boiled rice that has been steamed off dry. Add a cupful of stiffly whipped cream, turn into a wet mould and set to chill. Unmould and serve in slices with whipped cream or fruit juice for sauce.

Rhubarb Jelly.

Wash and cut in pieces six bunches of rhubarb, cover with boiling water and let stand 10 minutes. Drain and put it into a saucepan with a pint of water and cook down until soft. Strain, add enough sugar to make the juice quite sweet, add a tablespoonful of gelatine powder dissolved in a little water and let come to boiling-point. Then strain into a wet mould and set away to stiffen. Serve sliced with whipped cream.

Rice Blanc Mange.

Mix four ounces of ground rice to a stiff paste with a half-pint of rich milk. Put a pint and a half of milk into a saucepan with a stick of cinnamon and the peel of half a lemon. When hot add two tablespoonfuls of gelatine powder, dissolved in cold milk. Let come to the boiling-point, then stir in the rice and a half-cupful of sugar. When thickened, remove peel and cinnamon and pour into a wet mould. When chilled unmould and serve with whipped cream.

Orange Cream.

Squeeze the juice of eight oranges and a large lemon. Add enough water to make 1½ pints. Strain the liquid into a saucepan, add a cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of gelatine dissolved in a little warm water. Let this mixture simmer for five minutes until all is clear, then cool. When cool beat in a half-pint of cream whipped dry, turn into a mould and set to chill. Serve with whipped cream, or with ice cream.

Strawberry Cream.

Wash, top and mash a quart of ripe berries with a cupful of powdered sugar, then mash through a fine sieve. Dissolve 1½ ounces of powdered gelatine in a little hot water. Cool, then add it to a pint of milk. Add the berry juice and a pint of whipped cream. Pour into a wet mould and set to chill. Serve with whipped cream.

Pineapple Sherbet.

Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatine in a cupful of cold water, let stand 15 minutes, then turn in a cupful of boiling water. Add a half-cup of grated pineapple, the juice of a fresh lemon and 1½ cupfuls of sugar. Pour into the freezer, pack with salt and ice, and let stand until firm, but not hard.

Tapioca Ice.

Soak a cupful of tapioca over-night and in the morning put it on to boil. When hot, add a cupful of sugar and boil until it is clear. Pare and chop a fresh pineapple, dust with powdered sugar, then pour the tapioca over it. [illegible] a wet mould and set to chill. When cold serve with sugar and plain sweet cream.

Currant Jelly Pie.

Line a pie plate with good crust, prick it with a fork and bake it. Take two cupfuls of currants and add a cupful of water. Bring to a boil, then strain. Add a cupful and a half of sugar, a heaping tablespoonful of gelatine dissolved in a little water. [illegible] into the crust and set to harden. When [illegible] serve with whipped cream.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE EVERY BRIDE GIVES HER BRIDEGROOM THE SAME GIFT.

ONE of the most perplexing questions for a bride in our country to decide is what she shall give the bridegroom for a wedding present.

Shall it be a watch, shirt buttons or some other bit of jewelry?

A trip to the jeweler's follows, and with much care and loving thought the present is purchased and orders are given for the initials and date to be engraved.

The Treasured Gift.

With this decision scratched off the list of the many important items to which she must devote her attention, the bride gives a sigh of relief.

In Sweden it is different. From the moment a girl realizes there is such an institution as marriage, she knows just what will be her wedding present to her future husband.

As the years go by, she thinks more seriously of marriage and dreams of the day when her Prince Charming will ride up to her father's castle and claim her for his bride. And in her thoughts there is the picture of herself making the wedding present she shall give him. For she will make his gift with her own hands and try harder than ever she tried before to take the tiniest stitches in the world.

To us the Swedish bride's wedding present may not sound romantic—it is a shirt. But this is the customary present for a Swedish girl to make with her own hands for her intended husband.

He wears it on their wedding day. Then it is carefully put away, and he never wears it again until he dies and is buried in it.

Should he marry again? In this event it is decreed by the custom of centuries that he must destroy the shirt on the eve of his second wedding.

He must not rob his bride—whether she be maid or widow—of carrying out one of the beloved ancient customs of their country.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Shock Jerry Ticer Gave Madge at the Station.

I WAS on the train speeding eastward when I first realized, with a panic-stricken start, that I had been out of touch with the farmhouse for 18 hours. Little Mrs. Durkee's illness, with the terrifying prospect of an operation, and the task of restoring Leila to a sane outlook upon the machinations of Bess Dean against her peace of mind, had made me forget that—with Dicky also away from the apartment—the people at home could not reach either of us in any possible emergency.

Almost anything could have happened to Junior in that time, I told myself in the bitterest self-reproach which most mothers and some fathers know in all its poignancy. And for several miles I tortured myself with imagining all sorts of catastrophes and picturing the wild distress of my mother-in-law, when repeated telephones to the apartment elicited no answer.

Lillian, with Marion, was still in the Catskill mountain home of Mrs. Cosgrove, Robert Savarin's sister, where she had gone to recuperate from the arduous nerve-strain attending her work in breaking up the gang of conspirators against the government headed by the royal refugee who called himself "Smith."

Lillian would have found me in any emergency to Junior, if to do it she had been compelled to call out the police reserves and the standing army. But Lillian was not at the farmhouse.

With only Katie's hysteria and Jim's limited capacity back of my aged and infirm mother-in-law, she would be wild with terrifying anxiety if she could get no response to a telephone summons for Dicky or me.

Then, with a blessed sense of relief, I remembered that Katherine Sonnot Bickett was still at the farm, or at least no further off than the Southampton Hospital, where she was on call for emergency cases—desiring only enough work to keep her independent mentally and financially of her husband, still absent on his expedition to the wilds of South America.

Katherine could be with Mother Graham within a few minutes, and I knew that failing to reach me at the apartment, her next proceeding would be to get in touch with the Durkees. That no message had been received from the farmhouse was proof that nothing serious had happened.

So the only fear I had left was that of an accident happening at home since I boarded the train at Marvin. I saw Junior toddling into the road in the path of an automobile. I visioned him beneath the hoofs of a horse with no Marion at hand to save him, as she had done once before. I imagined that he was once more in the brutal hands of the man across the road—but every mother who has taken a journey without her child knows the gamut which my fears ran until alighting from the train at Bridgehampton I saw Jerry Ticer standing upon the platform, his usually cheery face downcast, even sorrowful.

"I'm Afraid—"

With a feeling of ice at my heart, I rushed up to him and seized him by the arm.

"Jerry, what has happened?" I asked wildly.

He looked at me wonderingly.

"Why! Mis' Graham, where did you come from?" he asked. "They didn't expect you so soon."

"So soon!" Then they had sent for me! I gave the arm I held a peremptory shake.

"Tell me what's the matter!" I commanded.

Jerry shook his head sorrowfully.

"I'm afraid she's going to die, Mis' Graham," he said mournfully.

"Who?" My heart was relieved of its heaviest burden by his use of the feminine form of the pronoun, but Mother Graham, Katherine, Katie—I suffered for each in turn before Jerry's maddeningly slow response.

"Lady, Mis' Graham. You remember Lady, that horse of mine? Well, she's awful sick. I've give her two quarts of that liniment I told you about—the dose is one quart, but I thought I'd be on the safe side—and she's lying just like she's dead back home.

Madge Makes a Promise.

"Pop," he went on mournfully, "he says he can't afford a vet for her. She's no good anyway, he says. Better off dead than alive, he says. So I come down to see if maybe the vet would tell me something to do for her if I gave him a dollar—I had one—but I lost it somewhere. I've looked all over for it, and it's gone!"

The big, lubberly boy's face was so genuinely grief-stricken that I forgave him for the unintentional fright he had given me and made a quick decision.

"Is everything all right at the farm, Jerry?"

"Yes, Yes, ma'am, no, ma'am. Everything's fine and dandy."

"Jerry! Who is your veterinarian?" I asked. "Dr. Mitchell, the one we have at the farm?"

"Yes, ma'am, no, ma'am," he stammered again with his odd little manner.

"Jerry," I said kindly, "get me a [illegible] and I'll take you [illegible] I go home. You shall [illegible] whatever is necessary to cure Lady, [illegible] can be paid, and I want Dr. Mitchell to send the bill to me."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl about 18 years of age. I have been going with a young man for about a year. More than three months ago this young man went to another city to work. He cared very much for me while he was here, but when he got there he became interested in other girls.

He wrote to me, but not as often as he did before he left home. A little over a month ago he wrote me, asking permission to get an engagement ring.

This man asked me to be his wife a few months after we were together the first time. But he just asked then to get me the ring. He said I was the only girl for him.

Now, about three weeks ago, I received a letter from him saying he was engaged to another girl where he was [illegible].

Do you really think this man knows his own mind?

He was very good to me. I dearly love him. I can't forget him and think I must have him. Is there any way in which I can win him back?

A BROKEN-HEARTED DEAR.

A BROKEN-HEARTED DEAR: The young man certainly does not know his own mind, my dear. He is fickle and unreliable and you should not waste your time thinking of him.

Forget him as soon as possible. Go about with your other young friends. Some day you are sure to find a young man who will appreciate your loyalty.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

About five months ago I became acquainted with a young man and we went out together several times. One night at a dance he noticed a ring on my finger and asked to see it. He put it on [illegible] and he said "after a while." So, later in the evening, I asked him for it again, but he told me the same thing. As I considered him a friend, I let it go and took him at his word. But I didn't get the ring that night.

I saw him several times, but he never had the ring. I asked him about it two or three times and he said he was having it fixed. I wrote to him three times and told him that was a "steal" and asked him to bring it to me. After the last letter he finally admitted he [illegible] some one wear it. The question is, can I get it and how?

JILTED.

JILTED: Tell your parents or some older person. Ask them to go to the young man and demand the ring.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls going to high school and we would like your advice.

1—Is there any way in which you can encourage a boy friend to take you out?

2—If a young man has never made a date with you, is it proper to invite him up to the house?

3—[illegible] of our boy friends who asks to take us out, but when [illegible] he pretends [illegible]. Why should he act in this way? Is it because we didn't [illegible]? We didn't refuse him because we didn't want to go, but because we had other arrangements.

TWO GIRLS.

TWO GIRLS: 1—Anything which you might do to suggest to a young man that he take you out would be considered forward.

2—Yes, it would be entirely proper.

3—The young man is always very bad mannered. Do not take him too seriously, my dears.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Annie Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

PULL WIRES FOR RALSTON

INDIANA SENATOR MAY GET DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION.

Indications at French Lick are That Al Smith May Be Forced to Accept Low Position on Ticket, if At All.

By P. D. Scott.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., June 15.—The opinion that wires are being pulled here in the "democratic political capital" to swing the democratic president nomination to United States Senator Samuel M Ralston, Indiana, grew today.

The same opinion held that Gov. Al Smith, tho he may have presidential ambitions which he denies, may be forced to accept a lower position on the ticket, if any at all.

If the event Smith does not land on the ticket he may be permitted to dictate a wet or damp plank in the platform, altho democracy thruout the midwest is not favorably disposed toward a plank of any degree of dampness.

It developed today that the statement issued by Tom Taggart, political boss in Indiana democratic circles, was discussed with Ralston three days before it was issued. Taggart and Ralston conferred in the Indiana capital city on Monday afternoon.

CANNOT IDENTIFY SLAYER

Woman Whose Husband Was Shot By Gunwoman Collapses While Trying to Find Murderer.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Mrs. Richard C. Tesmer collapsed today when police brought an underworld gunwoman before her for identification as the girl bandit who shot Tesmer to death recently during a robbery.

Mrs. Tesmer, nervous at the strain of examining a score of girls with "blue eyes and a smile," declared the latest suspect looked "almost" like her husband's murderer.

She refused to identify positively the suspect, however.

"I can't say for sure," she declared She then became hysterical and is confined to her bed.

An hour previously Mrs Tesmer had exonerated a manicurist arrested in a raid on a north side apartment. This girl was released.

Mrs. Tesmer, who has been confined to her room since the shooting, save for a brief time at the funeral, told authorities she is haunted "day and night by the smile and blue eyes of the slayer."

Tesmer was shot without warning by the girl bandit who giggled as she pulled the trigger. He was attempting to console Mrs. Tesmer who protested at giving up her wedding ring as demanded by the slayeress and her companion.

MELBOURNE PROPERTY VALUES.

MELBOURNE—(By Mail.)—Some thing of the value of city property in Melbourne in indicated by the fact that a building on Collins street with a small lot was sold for $1,400,000 The site in 1836 had been sold for about $160. In other parts of Collins street property has been selling for $10,000 a foot The entire city of Melbourne was originally sold to a settler named John Batman in 1835 for a quantity of goods worth' probably less than a thousand dollars, but for various reasons the grant never passed in his hands. Later the site of Melbourne, now having a population of 800,000, was divided up into half-acre blocks that sold for $175 per block.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Mrs. Sue L James of Hot Springs, Ark., editor and proprietor of the Hot Springs Life, was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Archie Ensign.

Lieut John Hartigan of company D, Second Nebraska, had arrived from Chickamauga and would recruit at Fairbury.

Dr. W. W. Hastings of the department of physical training at the university had gone to Battle Creek, Mich., to negotiate for the purchase of a dynaemometer for the gymnasium.

Eugene Moore was acquitted of the charge of embezzlement, twelve jurymen pronouncing him guiltless.

Robert S. Browne, the well known bandmaster of Lincoln, was chosen chief musician of the new Third regiment and prepared to organize a regimental band.

The board of education elected twenty-two high school teachers for the coming year. The new teachers were Ada J. Atkinson, U. S. Parker and E. E. Magee.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: I have been a silent reader of your column but decided to write, not for advice, but to express my thoughts. I sure feel for L. D. I am not a girl, but I always have had my battles to fight, it is a hard fight. When a man falls all will trod on him.

Jess sure has some ideas, and Deshler 19 is sure a wonder. B. K. X. isn't so bad, but my opinion of Brute isn't worth mentioning. I am sure he can have his sis and the other girl he mentioned, to himself. Fifteen years is a big difference, but if Twenty really loves Thirty-five I would not discourage her.

My sympathy is with Kick Off if he didn't get the lover he wanted. I do not believe in petting parties, and this kissing business. But, Mary, do you really think there is any harm in dancing? One more question: Is three years enough to get acquainted? --Jarry.

A. Dancing is all right.

Three years should be long enough for acquaintance.

The practice you mention is not unmanly, but it isn't in very good taste.

Dear Mary Gordon: I have been a reader of your column for a long time and have come to ask a few questions. We have a little show about the place ever so often. I have just come from a place where I never dreamed such a thing could happen, but the old saying is, seeing is believing.

There are married women around the neighborhood who go out with men about every night, which doesn't look right in any way. It gets me to thinking if I ever were to marry how I would feel to have my wife go with some other men behind my back; it sure is a pity to see the poor little kids playing outside so happily when their mothers have no shame or pity on them, for they don't know.

Miss Gordon, if I ever had a mother that did such a thing I'd swear to God in heaven I'd disown her, but my poor mother is dead and, thank God, she never did anything like that, of all I know of her.

There are lots of women today that marry for a home, and bring shame on their little ones.

If women can't marry for love, and hold sacred the bond that ties them, they aren't worthy to be the mother of innocent little children who in after years carry the brand on them, "for they're judged by their parents."

I am a young man of twenty-two and have seen so many of these things that I don't dare to go with anyone, for I can't help but judge them all by what I've seen.

For I'm from God's country where everything is clean and good. How I long to get out of it all and go back.

I am strange to this kind of life, so please help me to solve this problem, for it may mean my happiness, or a complete failure. I hope I don't ask too much.—Perplexed Youth.

A. If you want me to tell you that there are good girls in this world who will make dutiful wives, then I can do that, without any trouble at all. Just wait until you find the right girl. You won't stop to wonder if she will hold her marriage vows sacred, but you will want her so badly that you will fail to think of all those faithless married men and women you have seen.

And when you have found her, trust her. If she is worthy of your love, she is worthy of trust. Just remember, too, that only a very small percentage of women leave their children while they go out with other men. You have just happened into an unfortunate neighborhood

Dear Mary Gordon: It rather looks as if I would have to sympathize with Brute after all. Some of your correspondents apparently haven't much use for us, and only because we're sincere.

I won't put Jacqueline in with the rest of you, tho, because she is not afraid to be frank and sincere even tho the intelligensia rather roast her for it.

By the way, I rather wish someone would attempt to describe me I'd like a good chance to laugh And, Mary, you said you knew two girls who couldn't be placed in that category. Won't you do me a favor and send me their full names and detailed descriptions I must see such paragous as they would appear to be

Now, let me explain my attitude toward "the Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Greidy." It's all very well to talk about respecting the modern girl, but it just can't be put into practice. How can you respect a thing which is only an insatiable gold-digger? Now don't tell me I've been disappointed in love or anything of that sort, because that wouldn't be true. Perhaps you can solve this problem for me. How can I, who have never cared for anyone or anything but myself, learn to respect and like someone whom I feel is not worthy of either?

Please don't let them treat me too harshly this time, because I'm only a poor ignorant man, unable to protect himself from the "wiles of wimmen." —B. K. X.

A You will note I have eliminated a few words and clauses from your letter. There are some things I cannot allow in the column, among them the impugning of my sincerity. Those of you who write I would ask to be careful in selection of words used. We can indulge in interesting discussions without violating the canons of good breeding

I wouldn't try to respect and like someone who, you feel, if not worthy. Save the effort for someone who is.

Surprise Potatoes.

When potatoes are old they need more careful cooking to make them tasty. These surprise croquets are always enjoyed:

Prepare 2 cups of mashed potatoes, 1 egg yolk and ½ cup of creamed peas, chicken or any bits of vegetables or meat left over.

Add the egg yolk to the mashed potatoes, being sure that the potatoes are very well seasoned. To a large spoonful, hollowed in the center, add a little of the creamed vegetable or meat Carefully work the potato over the filling, being sure that it is completely covered. Shape into cylinder form, dip into beaten white of egg to which two tablespoons of milk have been added, roll in fine bread crumbs and fry in deep fat until a golden brown. Or these may be dipped in egg and then into buttered crumbs and baked in a hot oven.

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, coal-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. E. M. Burgess of Enfield, N. C., who is 73, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Charles Chorman of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., wasted fifteen years and considerable money on other remedies before finding steady relief with Syrup Pepsin.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps. Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

REPORT ON RELIEF FUND

SUFFERERS IN MARCH FIRE CARED FOR BY DONATIONS.

Twenty-Four Families Who Were Left in Immediate Need are Grateful For Assistance.

C. E. Prevey, secertary of the social welfare society, has sent the State Journal the following report on the distribution of the fund amounting to $1,269.45, raised by the Journal company for the relief of those who suffered in the O street fire of March 12, 1923:

On or about March 23 the Journal company notified the Social Welfare Society that it would be asked to administer the fund and on the same day forwarded to this office a check for $500

This society immediately began a visitation of the families who suffered from the fire and continued until a personal acquaintance was had with every sufferer, and information secured as to the amount of loss by the fire, amount of insurance received, other ressources on hand, aid obtained from other sources and immediate needs to be supplied.

Twenty-four families were involved in the fire including fifty-seven individuals. In a few cases there was found to be immediate need for supplies and emergency orders were issued for groceries, clothing, etc.

In addition to rasing a cash relief fund the Journal made an appeal for contributions of clothing and household goods, and a large number of donations were received. These were collected by the social welfare society and were stored at the Ford Delivery company and in a vacant store room of Pauley Lumber company on N street. All of the fire sufferers were given full opportunity to select all articles needed. It was found that the larger part of the goods were unsuitable and were not taken by the fire sufferers. It was decided to conduct a rummage sale for the disposal of these articles and this was done and the proceeds, amounting to $94.23, were added to the fire relief funds.

On May 30 a committee appointed by N. Z. Snell, president of the society, met and carefully considered the report of the secretaries on the needs of the several fire sufferers. Those present were N. Z. Snell, Prof. G. O. Virtue, H. J. Hall, T. T. Folsom, R. O. Williams and Mrs. A. M. P. Cook. Others were invited but unable to attend were J. C. Seacrest, W. J. Byers, E. E. Henkle and William Roberts, jr. The committee decided to immediately distribute in cash the greater part of the fund to the beneficiaries, reserving a small portion to cover any emergency relief which might be found necessary during the next few months, while the victims should be in process of re-establishing themselves. In accordance with this decision, on April 4, checks were issued to beneficiaries to the amount of $919.85 and to merchants for supplies furnished to beneficiaries $125.41

After this distribution no special needs developed, altho expenditures of $35.43 were made on May 3 for merchandise to beneficiaries. This left a balance of $188.76 in the fund and on June 7 at the monthly meeting of the board of directors this was apportioned to the twenty-four beneficiaries and checks drawn to them closing the account.

In making these apportionments on April 5 and June 7, the special committee and the board of directors have aimed to distribute the money to those in need according to their needs, taking into consideration their insurance money received and other resources, but providing that all who suffered should receive at least a certain minimum sum.

The officers of the society have maintained most pleasant relations with all beneficiaries of the fund and have not heard of a single complaint from them or anyone else as to the administration of the same. All recipients have expressed hearty appreciation of this philanthropy which relieved their distress in a time of urgent need.

The following is a statement of the receipts and expenditures of this fund:

Tax Fairy-Stories.

Boston's tax rate stands little chance of being reduced, we read altho the assessors of that flourishing metropolis expect and hope to mark up property valuations about a hundred million this year. To a very great extent such increase in the valuations represents new building—but by no means always does it follow One grand good way of puttying up the holes of wasteful administration is to have the assessors make a fresh guess at the worth of the local land and buildings—with the result that a reduction in the tax-rate is joyously hailed by the deluded citizen as something to be glad about, until his next tax-bill arrives demanding somewhat more than last year. The rarest and most elusive thing in municipal finance, we fear, is an "honest tax rate." Now and then a reduction is advertised by proud administrators, only to pave the way for a higher rate than ever the year or two following.

CHAPTER LXV.

Tragedy.

In the small Long Island bungalow sat Marcella, listening to the interminable ticking of the clock.

Upstairs her father was asleep. He looked so like a tired child that her heart smote her when she looked at him. Whatever Miles or Warwick did he mustn't bear the brunt of things!

"But Miles is clever," she told herself, hopefully, "He'll think of something that'll prevent Warwick doing what he said he'd do if I threw him over.

She was very anxious, none the less.

Suppose both lost their tempers—as was likely—and a dreadful scene ensued? Suppose they fought....?

She ought never to have allowed Miles to go up there.

The ticking of the clock, and the snoring of the 'colored girl' who now—since Marcella's fright on the night of the storm—slept nightly in the bungalow, were the only sounds that broke the silence.

At last an hour went by, and the girl, flinging a wrap about her shoulders, stole out into the silvery moonlight and sped through the garden to the little coppice.

Miles wasn't there.

She waited patiently.

And at last she heard his whistle.

"That you, Marcella?" He came striding through the undergrowth, and she could see how strained and white his face was. There was something peculiarly agitated in his mien and manner.

"Yes. Quick, tell me—how did it go? Was he very angry?" she asked, in staccato. Much of his agitation had communicated itself to her.

"We—we had a row." She could see that Miles' hands were shaking. "He said vile things. I lost my temper, and struck the cad."

"You mean you fought?" breathed Marcella. Then, noticing that his collar was torn open, and that some blood was on his chin, she gave a startled exclamation.

"Oh, I'm all right," said Miles in a low voice. "But—listen—I want you to go away with me tonight, Marcella. You—you've got to go! D'you hear me?"

"How? It's impossible! Where could we go to? You've got a room at the inn, and the last train for New York has gone!" She glanced at the luminous hands of her wrist-watch. "It's going on for midnight. Nearly twelve."

"You must get your hat and coat and leave a note for your father,' said Miles stubbornly, one hand on her wrist. "I can hire a car at a garage half a mile from here, and we'll motor to New York—or better, to a justice of the peace, who'll marry us. D'you hear?"

His manner was so distaught that it frightened her. She tried to soothe him.

"It would look terrible, at this hour of the night. Besides, how could I leave my father?"

"You must, Marcella!"

She drew back.

"Listen. Let me go in now, and tomorrow morning, early, we can slip away." He must be pacified, she told herself. Besides, maybe tomorrow morning, when Miles came in a car, her father would be well enough to travel, and they'd all three slip away, far from this impending marriage....and be happy....

When Miles realized that she was firm, he did at last go off, assuring her that he would call soon after daylight with a touring car, and she must have everything in readiness.

Then, kissing her ardently, he disappeared among the bushes in the direction of the village inn.

"How strange he was!" the girl thought, wondering and shaken. "And oh! how furious Warwick must have been!"

Then happiness crept back to her. Miles would take her father and herself away....Miles was so clever he'd clear up the matter of the vase....tomorrow he and she would marry....life would be wonderful together!

Methodically she set about her packing, moving very quietly.

Then, into the silent air, cut the sharp ting-ting of the 'phone bell. Her heart missed a beat. Could it be Warwick, suspicious....?

It wasn't Warwick. Holding the receiver close against her ear, she heard a confused medley of voices, then a man's....it sounded like the tones of Lady Warrington's butler....greatly excited.

What could it be?

"Speak louder. I can't hear," said Marcella, with a sudden premonition of disaster. "What is it?"

More jumbled tones. Then Lady Warrington's, in high staccato:

"Give me the phone, you fool. I'll speak to her." A second's pause. Then: "is that you, Marcella?"

"Yes."

"Brace yourself up....something terrible to tell you....hello, can you hear me?"

"Yes. Yes. What is it? What has happened?" Her heart hammered in her throat.

A pause. Then:

"There's been a murder in the house. We've just found Warwick Treman....hello! hello!....can you hear?...."

Marcella's dry lips could not utter a single sound. God! The ghastly premonition....

Then Lady Warrington's voice again sharpened excited:

"We've just found Warwick Treman in his room—dead—lying on the floor—shot through the heart!"

REPLICA OF HUDSON FORT.

CALGARY, Alberta.—(By Mail.)—A replica of an old time Hudson's bay fort, such as once was the nucleus of the western posts of the great company, and which still exist in the far north, will be erected at the Calgary exhibition grounds, July 9 to 14, as a part of the big stampede feature.

All major league baseball clubs must cut their rosters to the limit of twenty-five players.

GREAT STRIDE MADE IN MEDICAL SCIENCE

Explanation of Cause of Cancer Advanced By Chemist Who Attributes It to Excess of Positive Electrons.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Three great strides were taken today in the fight of science to conquer disease.

A possible explanation of the cause of cancer was advanced by Donald C. Butts, chemist of Philadelphia, who attributed the baffling disease to an excess of positive electrons of energy in the cells of the body.

In New York a woman lay for more than thirteen hours under the piercing rays of a 240,000-volt X-ray machine which ate away cancerous cells in the abdomen. Formerly 150,000 volts was the maximum and 100 minutes was the longest period the rays were ever applied

A baby three days old, facing certain death because it could not breathe, was saved when powerful rays withered the thymus gland in its throat and restored normal respiration.

Butts' explanation of the disease is that an electro-chemical disturbance of particles in the cells of the body tissues causes them to "go wild." His theory is being thoroly investigated by the scientists who believe cause of cancer must be established definitely before any cure can be found.

The X-ray machine used upon the woman in New York was powerful enough to send its rays thru a brick wall and show bones in a human hand 200 feet distant. Physicians administered liquid food to the patient during the experiment and permitted her to sleep while the powerful rays were trained on an exposed portion of her back.

The experiment was conducted at Bellevue hospital under supervision of Dr. I. Seith Hirsch, who has been working on the method for more than a year. The patient, Miss Anna Ellin, twenty-eight, of Spring Valley, N. Y., is reported resting comfortably.

Physicians who watched eagerly as the experiment progressed said the woman showed favorable signs at all times.

The three-day old baby, Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schwartz, was apparently normal when born, but after a day she was stricken and unable to breathe. Thru artificial respiration she was kept alive but each time oxygen was shut down the child lapsed.

The thymus gland, a mysterious organ functioning only in infants, did not die as is usual after birth but started growing. Thru application of the X-ray its trend was reversed and the life of the infant saved. Physicians believe the success of the experiment proves that many so called "blue babies" who die immediately after birth, may be saved in the future.

RIOT OF TIME ON CONTINENT.

BERLIN.—(By Mail)—They're having a time of it in Europe today. Daylight saving time, railroad time, standard time, good old summer time—all mixed up promiscuously here and there about Europe—have left the time situation in a sorry mess. Great Britain has summer time. Belgium has summer time some portions of Italy have daylight time, while others have standard central time. France has standard time, while Holland has home-town time, reckoned on the position of the sun in each particular city, while her railroads operate on Greenwich time.

How to build up your Weight

TO be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Remarkable Tonic Brings New Strength to Thousands of Weak and Ailing

Discovery of Lyko, the Great General Tonic, Gives Aid of Science to Run-Down People

As you watch the crowd going along the street, how easy it is to see the difference in the people who make it up.

Some are well, strong, vigorous, full of the vim and energy that win in social and business life. Others are weak, emaciated, lacking in all that counts for power and success—mere nobodies in active affairs.

And yet most of these run-down people could quickly become well and strong if they would only help Nature to restore their bodies to a normal condition. What they need is an efficient general tonic and regulator. If they will do what thousands of other people once weak and lacking in energy—now strong and well—have done, they will use Lyko to get on their feet again.

It is simply amazing to read of the wonderful help Lyko has given to people who had become worn out in mind and body, many of them discouraged, hopeless of regaining their health and strength.

Mr. Johnson, a resident of Kansas City, was amazed at the way Lyko built up his run-down constitution. He says, "When I began taking Lyko I was thin and gaunt, weighed only 130 pounds, and felt a great lack of 'pep.' Now I weigh 147 pounds, am full of energy and never feel tired."

H. Jenkins, of Chicago, is another to whom Lyko has meant renewed strength and vigor. The following is from his letter: "My business keeps me closely confined to the office and at a desk all day long. As a result, my system became all clogged up, I was always tired, rested poorly at night and grew nervous and irritable. I began using Lyko and now I am in fine shape again, feel cheerful, and am able to do much more work without fatigue or nervous strain."

Mitchell Murray, of Missouri, sends a letter which says: "When I began to take Lyko I was so weak I could hardly walk across the room. Now I am able to do a pretty fair day's work, and my neighbors are amazed at the effect."

J. D. Miller of Chicago writes: "We have been using Lyko in our family and find it the best tonic for stomach and bowels we have ever used."

F. B. Barker of Florida is another who writes in praise of Lyko. He says: "My wife's health was all run down and she has greatly improved since taking Lyko."

Lyko is a scientific preparation containing pure medicinal ingredients each of which has a beneficial action on some part of the system. It has a mild but effective laxative action which gets rid of constipation. It also stimulates a lazy stomach to normal action and improves digestion so that the body absorbs the full strength from the food. As many ailments come from a disordered digestive system or from a clogged up condition of the bowels, Lyko helps to remove one of the great causes of discomfort and illness.

Certain ingredients in Lyko have a direct and beneficial action on the kidneys and liver; others give strength to the nervous system and prevent what is known as nervous fatigue and mental exhaustion. Practically every part of the body is helped to return to its full health and strength by Lyko. And a healthy body means physical and mental power, magnetic personality, the appearance that brings admiration and confidence.

If you are frail, weak, suffering from a "breakdown" or if you feel inactive, lacking in energy, unable to compete with active people, if you look and feel old, let Lyko give you new vim and vigor. Do not delay. Begin at once. Let Lyko do for you what it has done for so many others.

Lyko is sold by leading druggists. Ask your dealer for it.

START FINING DRIVERS

...ists Appear in Police Court and ... Warned Against Using Public Street For Garage.

"... ordinance was made to keep ... from using the street for a garage," Police Judge Chappell told five motorists who were arraigned Friday morning on charged of leaving their autos parked without tail lights after dark. They were tagged Thursday night by police. The judge announced that he will start fining violators of this ordinance. He believes that the streets were made to travel on and not for public garages. The five violators were each dismissed with a warning and told that they would be treated as second offenders on their next appearance in police court.

The judge reminded the motorists that someone is liable to crash into a machine parked without lights and that it could cause trouble for the fire department. Four of the five arraigned have no garage, according to the judge. They parked their autos and turned off the lights.

VICTORIA HOTEL DAMAGE SUIT

Naomi Cleaves Asks For a Judgment of $158.

Naomi Cleaves, who alleges that her trunk and its contents were totally damaged by fire and water in the Victoria hotel blaze on March 13, asks for a judgment of $158.50 in a bill of particulars filed in Justice of Peace W. A. Hawes' court Friday morning. The defendant is the Royal Hotel company. The plaintiff says that the trunk was in the custody of the defendant when destroyed. She additionally asks for seven per cent interests on the goods lost and the costs of the suit. She says that a demand for payment was refused more than ninety days prior to the institution of the damage suit. The case will be taken up next Monday.

DOES "PETTICOAT GOVERNMENT" RULE?

Sir William Watson, noted English poet, has asserted that America is a nation of "women worshippers" that the United States is ruled by a "petticoat government" and that American women were primarily responsible for the eighteenth amendment and subsequent more-or-less prohibition. Miss Lucy Branham, Carnegie medal winner for heroism and a leader of the national woman's party, has characterized his statements as "bunk". America, she said is "male-ridden," and women haven't the least shart "of the political or economic energy which is their just due." Chief credit for prohibition, she added, must go to the middle class business man, who could not afford to drink and did not want to see his workers drunk.

What's Government For, Anyway?

The New York World is trying to spoil Chairman Lasker's Leviathan party. It reveals that he is going to spend at least $200,000 and perhaps a great deal more to take six hundred invited guests on an ocean joy-ride aboard the reconditioned flag ship of the United States shipping board—the largest, fastest and costliest liner afloat.

It isn't a trial trip, the World insists. The Leviathan has had all such tests and has been approved for passenger service, and might now be reaping rich profits in carrying Americans to Europe but for these other plans of the shipping board chairman. These call for a week's cruise in southern waters for the pleasure and edification of publicity agents, members of congress, dignitaries and other favored persons who enjoy the acquaintance of members of the shipping board and its chairman.

Such is the World's cry to heaven and it wants to know what the taxpayers think about it. Well, it does look like an expensive party—or would if it were being given by a private citizen. But the World ought perhaps to reflect that, looked at as a government function, it doesn't seem so unusual, and in point of expense is rather cheap than otherwise. Certainly $200,000 isn't much of an expenditure with some others the shipping board has made.

But what if it were a million dollars ... it's the government that's spending it, isn't it? Mr. Lasker is a government official, isn't he? More than that, he's a retiring government official, and as such certainly is entitled to a farewell blow-out. Making things pleasant for public officials is one of the first charges on government. The World ought to know that, one would think. We might not be able to get government officials if they weren't permitted to treat themselves right, and then we'd be in a fine fix, wouldn't we? We might not have a shipping board at all.

And anyway, so far as this particular party is concerned, it's reasonable to suppose Chairman Lasker wants to make sure the service bells on the Leviathan are working properly. His guests will ascertain that. When they get thru working those bells no defect in them will be undiscovered, and the stewards will be trained to meet the demands of the most exacting passenger when the ship goes into regular service.

What the world seems to need is a little more pride in government. All taxpayers should have that. They should frown on a niggard policy, because nothing makes government look smaller than a cheapening of the public service. Our own idea is that the Leviathan ought to be reserved for regular pleasure trips such as Mr. Lasker is giving, and that every American should have a free ride on her. The idea of the government making a profit on her is rather repugnant to us. It doesn't seem a proper thing for government to do.—Kansas City Star.

The Alfred Jewel.

On entering the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford, England, one sees many interesting and valuable treasures, says John Waddell Chase in his article, "The Alfred Jewel", in St. Nicholas. In the different rooms are collections of Greek and Roman sculpture, prehistoric antiquities, historic relics and paintings of all the schools. Among the most important of these are the Pomfret marbles of Greece, Sir Arthur Evans's Cretan collection, and the Lawrence collection of drawings by Michelangelo and Raphael. But in one rather inconspicious corner, there is a little bauble valued by Oxford university more than these or any other antiquity in its possession. This is the famous Alfred Jewel.

The Alfred Jewel is a beautiful gold-and-enamel ornament in shape much like a very small tennis racket. The extreme length of the jewel is slightly under two inches and a half, its greatest width is one inch and a fifth, its thickness scarcely half an inch. On the obverse is an enameled green-robed figure, almost oriental in design. This figure is set in a background of dark blue. The enamel is covered by a transparent rock-crystal and is encased by a broad decorative band of gold. By some the figure is supposed to represent St. Cuthbert, Alfred's patron saint, but generally it is considered to represent Christ. On the reverse is an allegorical design, cut in the gold. The handle of the "racket" apparently represents a boar's head (altho some think it the head of a dolphin.) The idea of the boar's head as a warrior's charm is found in Tacitus and also in Beowulf. The superstition as referred to by Tacitus, is that, with a boar's head on the helmet, a German expected to win in battle, even if he had no weapons. Around the sloping sides of the jewel runs a sentence in Anglo-Saxon:

Aelfred Mec Heht Gewyrcan

"Alfred me ordered make," "Alfred ordered me to be made."

Strong and Clear as Crystal.

Governor Smith's argument is clear as crystal and is unexceptionable from the legal and constitutional point of view. If most of your readers are of your own way of thinking, it would be missionary work of the most commendable kind to distribute copies of Governor Smith's memorandum broadcast in western Massachusetts.

I note you have plenty of room in your valuable columns for a silly screed taken from Capper's Weekly, which substitutes mere conclusions for argument, and vituperation for logic, such, for instance, as the statements that New York "is in open rebellion against the power and authority of the United States," and "seeks to impose her will on forty-seven states," and that "whisky nowadays has no standing as a medicine."

You have yet to accuse Governor Smith of lese majeste for administering a timely rebuke to President Harding and giving him a needed lesson in civil government—a rebuke which has the express approval of Judge Willard Bartlett of the court of appeals and other high judicial authorities of New York. In bidding for prohibition support President Harding forgot his civil government. Governor Smith has refreshed his memory.

Governor Smith should be commended for his fearless stand. He has produced a great state paper and has rendered a timely and most important service to the cause of democracy and constitutional liberty in the United States, however much the republican may prefer to ignore it.—Edward Billings in Springfield Republican.

The Mounting Taxation Load.

Taxation will be to the fore at the meeting in Fairbault June 20-21 of the league of Minnesota Municipalities. And naturally, for taxes form the biggest government problem of the day, whether viewed from the federal, state or the local standpoint.

It did not need President Harding's letter to the league officers to show that he is keenly alive to the wide scope and exigent importance of the taxation problem, for it is a frequent theme of his state papers, his addresses and his conversation.

But his letter brings to the front for general examination the significant fact that all sorts of taxation in this country have increased tremendously in the past decade.

Mr. Harding presents the census bureau's analysis to show that state expenditures in America have increased 163 per cent from 1913 to 1921, city expenditures in 227 of the largest centers have grown 71 per cent. Indebtedness in the same period has grown 139 per cent for the States and 49 per cent for the cities. Undoubtedly, these increases have gone on at the same or greater ratio since 1921.

To the mounting taxes levied to carry such expenditures and pay interest and amortization of indebtedness, there must of course be added the federal taxes, which lay a heavy hand on every kind of business and production.

We are accustomed to groan loudly over federal and state taxes, and with reason. But local taxes, after all, are the largest item in the list, especially for the average city dweller. Thus out of every tax dollar he pays, 46 cents goes for city government and seven for county government—or more than half of the whole dollar. Of the remainder, 37 cents goes to Washington and ten cents to the state capital.

Taxes? There is no greater economic problem facing the world today—Minneapolis Journal.

Bogy in School Histories.

Forty thousand words contain great possibilities of exploitation. Yet it would be hard for any writer to acheive more with them than is done by Commissioner David Hirshfield in his report to the mayor condemning eight public school text-books of American history as pro-British and "fit only to be fed to the furnace."

Within this compass Hirshfield refutes half a dozen of the country's most competent historians, including Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard university; exposes a British propaganda plot of wide proportions, uncovers similar sinister anti-American influences in newspapers, magazines, movies, churches and other agencies of publicity and pillories some score of distinguished citizens as fostering the propaganda, the inspiring movie of which is traced to an "international money power."

Could forty men with a thousand words apiece do as much as that? What the fathers of the republic would think of the need of a defense of their reputations at the hands of this late-day champion can only be conjectured. They did not ask to be canonized by tradition and they might be satisfied to be painted "with the warts on" by authors seeking the truth instead of the romance of history.

But it is possible to understand what New York leaders of opinion jealous of the educational ideals of the city will think of the Hirshfield report. It is about the most preposterous conceivable municipal document. Historians have disagreed about the facts of history and always will disagree. But to imagine that any number of them are deliberately engaged in a plot to prejudice the patriotism of American school children is little less than idiocy.—New York World.

At Last.

Beyond the bourne of mortal death and birth,
Two lovers—parted sorrowing on earth—
Met in the land of dim and ghostly space
Wondering he gazed on her illumined face
"Alone you bear the burden now," he said,
"Of bondage; mine is ended—I am dead."
With rapturous note of victory, she cried,
"The Lord of Life be praised! I, too, have died."

ADDITION TO CAR FORCES

BURLINGTON PLANS TO INCREASE AVAILABLE EQUIPMENT.

Number of Bad Order Cars to Be Cut in Half Between Now and Next October.

Burlington superintendents, master mechanics and car foremen who attended the meeting held in the office of General Superintendent Lyman to discuss handling the traffic increase which is looked for in the near future approved the program which will add between six and seven hundred additional employes in the car repair yards on the Nebraska district. This railroad is trying to carry out the program of the American railway association by which it is hoped to reduce the number of bad order cars to 5 per cent of the ownership by October 1. This percentage ordinarily runs between 8 and 10. This reduction in the number of bad order cars will materially add to the number of cars fit for grain transportation use.

A statement was given to the officials present which showed that in the period preceding March 17 last the railroads of the United States have handled a greater amount of tonnage than was ever handled in a like period. It exceeded by a million and a half the number of cars handled in 1920 for the same period and by a million and a third the number of cars handled in 1919 for the same period. The statement alsco told these officials that of the 223,616 new freight cars ordered by the railroads more than half had been delivered and put in service and that over 2,000 new locomotives had been placed in service with a like number ordered to be delivered soon.

Burlington officials were told that every effort is to be made by this road to move grain rapidly and without delay as soon as it is offered.

It was pointed out that to reduce the amount of fuel tonnage in the busy months of the fall that the railroad itself has been storing vast amounts of coal and has been urging dealers and consumers to do likewise. At most terminals of the road in Nebraska a great deal of company coal has been stored. Every effort to facilitate and anticipate the movement of fuel has been made. In order to get other work out of the way the company began its construction and improvement program early in the season. It was also urged that every employe of the road be impressed with the necessity for loading all cars to maximum capacity in the hope that the average carload should be brought up to 30 tons per car for the entire country. Consideration of yard delays and train movements required attention during the conference. The American railway association is trying to bring the average car mileage to 30 miles per day. Officials were urged to avoid as far as possible congestion of terminals.

Superintendent of Motive Roope for the lines west and General Superintendent Lyman were in charge of the conference and pointed out to the men working for the road on the Nebraska district that not only the prosperity of the patrons of the road but the prosperity of the road itself depended upon the quality of service given during the traffic rush to come Mr. Lyman expressed the belief that the Burlington would be able to handle its share of the burden in an excellent way. He was also must elated over the spirit by those in charge of the transportation and mechanical department in this matter.

The Story of Grey Friars' Bobby.

The Connecticut Humane society has issued an attractive card with a picture of Grey Friars' Bobby and the following brief summary of the famous dog's story:

A poor man died in Edinburgh, in 1858, and was buried in the Grey Friars' churchyard. Among the mourners was a dog. The next morning, the old curator found him lying on the grave. He was a Scotch terrier, with grizzled black and tan feet and nose. As dogs are not allowed in the churchyard, the curator drove him out. The second morning he was found on his master's grave. It was cold and wet the third morning, but the dog was there, shivering and hungry. The old man, out of pity, fed him. The dog seemed to think that he had thus acquired a right to be there, and he made the churchyard his home. His right was recognized.

One of the Royal Engineers paid his board for a time; but for six years the keeper of a restaurant near by fed him regularly. Every day, at the sound of the Castle gun, he went for his meals. When the dog tax was raised, the restaurant keeper was called upon to pay for "Bobby." He would have done so, but the dog would never recognize him as his master. The case came to the attention of the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, who exempted him. As a mark of admiration of the dog's fidelity, he also presented him with a handsome collar with brass nails, on which was the inscription: "Grey Friars' Bobby, presented to him by the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, 1867." The dog died in 1872. He had made a multitude of friends, but he never acknowledged any other master than the poor man in his grave.

The lesson of this affecting story so impressed a good woman of England that she caused to be erected in Edinburgh a fountain which is surmounted by a bronze statute of "Bobby." The inscription reads:

"This monument was erected by a noble lady, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, to the memory of Grey Friars' Bobby, a faithful and affectionate little dog, who followed the remains of his beloved master to the churchyard in the year 1858 and became a constant visitor to the grave, refusing to be separated from the spot until he died in the year 1872."—National Humane Review.

"If you do not like my manner of talking," said J. Fuller Gloom to his opponent in an argument, "write your objections down on scraps of paper, wad them into a shotgun and shoot them into the side of a lumber yard, and I will pick them out and consider them at my leisure."—Kansas City Star.

NOT AN ARMY MAN BUT A SPEED COP

MAJOR GROSS.

Major is his name, not a title. He's the czar of Lincoln speed cops, and given a fair way none runs away from him. He has been with the department for the greater part of fourteen years, having had a year off now and then as administrations changed. Once, when he was a boy a policeman gave him a quarter for a trivial service and Major made up his mind right then that he was going to be a policeman. They seemed to have more money than anybody else. Gross has a longer line of arrests accredited to his name perhaps, than any other member of the department. He's a traffic officer, you know.

UNION PACIFIC MAY BUY DEFUNCT ROAD

Railroad Men Think This More Likely Fate For K. C. & N. W. Than Purchase By Chicago & Northwestern.

A number of Nebraska railroad men believe that if the Kansas City & North Western railroad is ever taken over by any larger road and rehabilitated, the road taking it over will be the Union Pacific. This is held to be most likely, notwithstanding the fact that the Union Pacific owns a railroad which very closely parallels the bankrupt property from Beatrice to Kansas City. The Rock Island might use this line to some advantage but it also closely parallels the Kansas City and Northwestern.

Those familiar with the traffic tie-up of the Union Pacific and the Chicago & Northwestern never expect to see the Chicago & Northwestern make any effort to secure ownership of the orphan road. They point out that it would not be becoming in the Northwestern to invade Union Pacific territory, either by construction or purchase They do not expect to see such an invasion even tho the prize should be a desirable inlet to Kansas City. Neither do these men expect the Union Pacific to invade Northwestern territory in the Wyoming oil territory.

No move on the part of any road to acquire new properties is anticipated until it is known what the government is going to do with the plan for grouping railroads. Some profess to believe that the grouping idea will be carried out eventually, but that instead of there being a few large groups there will be in the neighborhood of fifty. With a large number of groups, it is pointed out that it would be more nearly possible to reconcile conflicting interests. It is also shown that in every argument concerning grouping of the big systems the Union Pacific has opposed any plan that would separate it from the Northwestern, even tho it should be given the Milwaukee system instead. Similar objections have come from the Northwestern when it has been proposed to group the Union Pacific with the Rock Island or Milwaukee. Further, there are interests friendly to the Union Pacific on the Northwestern directorate and interests friendly to the Northwestern in the list of Union Pacific directors.

One of the principal assets of the Kansas City & Northwestern railroad is its yard properties in Kansas City, Kas. Expansion of Union Pacific interests in Kansas City, Kas., recently has shown that the Union Pacific could use to some adavntage the orphan road property.

It is argued that the Union Pacific would prefer to own this road to seeing it pass into the hands of some strongly competitive system. It bears practically the same relation to the Union Pacific Kansas lines that the old Kansas City & Omaha road in Nebraska bore to the Burlington, and which the Burlington finally bought to minimize Union Pacific interference in the South Platte territory.

GOVERNOR OF MAINE WHO HALF-MASTED FLAG WHEN DOG DIED

When Garry, the Irish setter friend of Governor Percival P. Baxter, died, he caused a lot of trouble. The governor ordered the American flag over the capitol lowered to half-mast.

The British Commonwealth.

I am of those who believe that the esshential unity of the commonwealth has in no sense been diminished by its development into an organization which is virtually a Britannic league of nations. Some years ago I referred to it as a disorganization rather than an organization, but I emphasized the fact that it was capable of being extremely effective in united action at time of need. The ties, "light as air but strong as links of iron," that hold its autonomous communities together are of far deeper significance than could be found in any written document or formal constitution As Professor Pollard has well said, political unity is a thing of the spirit and not a bond of parchment. The commonwealth is not held together by legalistic theories. It seems paradoxical to affirm that as its ties have in form become looser, they have in truth become stronger; yet this was demonstrated beyond question when the storm of war broke out upon the world in 1914.—Yale Review.

What the War Left England.

The aggregate burden of our defences, the we have fought and won the great war, is still very heavy We are spending this year 58,000,000 pounds on the navy 72,000,000 pounds on the army and 12,000,000 on the air force; and there is the probability that the naval and military requirements will increase, if not very greatly, while it is certain that more money must be devoted to the youngest service, with its still only partially revealed potentialities. It may be that in the time the development of the royal air force will offer us welcome naval and military economies, but that time is not yet.—London Daily Telegraph.

PLATTE RIVER NOT BOTHERED

EVEN STRING OF HEAVY RAINS FAIL TO BULGE BANKS.

Melting of Snow in Mountainous Region Alone Concerns This Stream and That Danger Practically Over.

While all sorts of trouble has been experienced along the Republican river, the Platte—stream of the broad shoulders has flowed along unmindful of a string of heavy rains. The Platte is not afraid of rains. The only thing that causes it to rise in fright and run from its chosen course is a deluge of snow water from the mountain region State Engineer Cochran says that there has been no bridge trouble along the Platte this season—nor even road trouble which can be charged to the river. He recalls but two seasons when this wide stream was seriously troubled. Those were 1917 and 1921.

On both occasions it was the melting of snow in the mountains which caused the grief. The North Platte scarcely knew there was a flood in Pueblo two years ago but the South Platte was well aware of it. Here is a condition, according to Mr. Cochran, which may cause the Platte a bit of anxiety, when heavy rains fall with the heavy melt of snow in the mountain region the demand for water for irrigation purposes is decreased and the river feels it. The danger of flooded conditions from snow water he says, is practically over for this year. The middle of June being usually fixed as the period at the end of any flood prospect.

The Northwestern is reported to have experienced a washout of approximately 300 feet of track near Wisner Thursday on the Norfolk-Fremont line. This delayed the connecting train to Lincoln and passengers brought the story that No. 2 passenger had just gone over the tracks when they went out.

The streets of Schuyler are likened to Venice by George Abel, paving contractor who returned Friday from a business trip over the state. He said that twice the amount of rain fell in sections visited by him as fell in Lincoln. He reports that all sorts of difficulties attend the laying of the big oil pipe line thru Nebraska from Casper to Kansas City. Pumps are used to clear some of the surface water and trench water before the pipes can be laid.

"It is the wettest it has been since 1915," he said.

Mr. Abel brings an amusing story from Schuyler. Bids were received on paving and storm sewers and the council, a committee from the Commercial club and probably a score of contractors and their representatives adjourned at 6:15 a. m. Thursday after an all-night session.

"First time in the history of paving that I have known of an all-night council session," he said.

The contract for brick pavement to cost $164,000 was awarded to A. H. Read of Omaha. The Dobson Construction company of Lincoln drew the $25,000 contract for storm sewers.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

What No One Wants to Do.

I wonder if any man ever achieved big things who was not capable of intense concentration.

And I wonder if there ever was a man who achieved success by his ability to concentrate intensely, who, when he knew he had to concentrate on some very difficult problem, didn't sometimes wish he were a day laborer working for small hire on some job where he didn't have to do a thing but follow directions, so that he need not push himself to the agony of that intense thinking.

For it often is agony.

Or perhaps a queer mixture of necessity and agony and satisfaction.

The Horse That Thought.

When I was a small child and used to go to visit my cousins, I was allowed to beguile the railway journey with ten cents worth of limedrops and my favorite magazine. The one stipulation was that before arriving at my cousins' home I should get rid of the magazine, as it was not one of which my aunt, who had very strict theories on child rearing, would approve. And yet it was in that fantastic (but not in the least harmful) magazine that I read one of the few stories that have always remained in my mind.

It was about a man who taught his horse to talk. The horse finally begged the man to shoot him because, along with the power of speech, had come the power of thought; and the fact that he could never stop thinking now—that one thought followed upon another in his unaccustomed brain—meant such acute suffering that he wanted to get away from it all.

I cannot tell why that story made such a vivid impression upon a child of ten, but it did. And I often find it coming to my mind in one connection or another.

Try It Yourself.

Of course we human beings are used to the fact that we can't stop thinking. But most of our thinking is desultory, wandering. When we try to think things straight thru, when we try to put our minds on something and not let them wander for a second, then we know a touch of that gloom which the imaginary horse might have experienced.

Try it yourself. Sit down and try to think thru some very difficult problem or to write a very difficult letter and see how quickly your mind says to you: "Oh, let's think of something else now." Haul it back by the scruff of its neck and push it onto the problem again, and see how long it is before it has wiggled free again and you are lost in pleasant day dreams, probably relating to what will happen after your still unsolved problem is happily solved.

The Agony of Concentration.

In an article about Lenin there was a very interesting passage describing his power of intense concentration and illustrating it by telling how he played chess. When confronted with a difficult chess problem "he would sit in a petrified position like a stone figure, symbolizing the superhuman strain of thought. On his enormous forehead little drops of perspiration appeared. His head was hanging over the board. His eyes were immovably fixed on the corner where the main strategic point of the battle was concentrated. Not a single muscle stirred on his face. On his wide temples bluish veins stood out. His whole power of will was concentrated on the pawns and figures before him."

And at the end of this period of concentration he made a move which won the game when the syndicate of skilled players who were working against him thought it could not be won.

"Thinking," someone has said, "is just what nobody wants to do."

And yet we all of us want the rewards of thinking.

WALT MASON

Clara.

Fair Clara is so widely known that when we hear her name our thoughts are of one girl alone; and such, my dears, is fame. Wherever public prints are read, wherever wires are strung, wherever stately peelers tread, her name is on each tongue. Ten thousand Claras pass our eyes, engaged in useful stunts, and some are making luscious pies, and some are paddling punts; but they are humble and obscure, they cut but little grass, they gain no fame that will endure while long-drawn fortnights pass. All kinds of Claras scoot around on worthy errands bent, but journalists don't paw the ground behind them, worth a cent. When they are born the Weekly Wave gives them three lines or four; and when we bear them to the grave they draw some eight lines more. Some Claras go their humble ways and shun the limelight's glare; in useful tasks they spent their days, and don't get anywhere. One Clara now is wearing bells and figures in the news; we hear about her taste in cells, the kind of gum she chews; around her correspondents buzz, with divers colored inks, and chronicle the things she does, and all the thoughts she thinks. Reporters trail her to and fro until she finds them bores, while all the unknown Claras go about their useful chores.

BIG SPEAKERS ON LABOR DAY

CENTRAL UNION COMMITTEE IS AT WORK ON PLANS.

Seeks Cooperation of Other Lincoln Citizens to Bring Men of National Prominence Here in September.

If the people of Lincoln will cooperate, the Central Labor Union proposes to secure speakers of national prominence on Labor day, which falls on the first Monday in September each year.

The central labor union has a committee at work on plans for the observance of the day. As the state fair opens at that time the committe is of the opinion that a most interesting and instructive meeting could be held either at the state fair grounds or at Capital Beach. The committee is instructed to make its report and its recommendations at the meeting of the central labor union June 21.

A local oragnization of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union of America has been formed. The union has received its charter and is already functioning. It takes in the unskilled laborers of Lincoln. Organization was completed at the Labor temple.

A similar organization is in Des Moines has been in existence for several years. As a result of negotiations completed in April a uniform scale was secured. They are now paid the following scale: building helpers 65 cents an hour; mortar mixers 75 cents an hour and hod carriers 87 1-2 cents an hour. The purpose of the new union of Lincoln is to standardize the wage scale for building laborers.

Laborers in the local building trades now receive from 30 to 50 cents an hour, and it was stated by a union labor official that few get as high as 50 cents an hour. Between forty and fifty joined the new organization as charter members. The names of the new officials were not given out.

A local union of the United States Tile and Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers' association was organized at the Labor Temple during the week. It was reported that practically 100 per cent of the roofers of the city are members of the new local. It will meet at the Labor Temple twice a month. It has already received its charter.

The journeymen tailors of Lincoln organized a local union recently at the Labor Temple and have elected officers. It will meet twice a month.

Trenton—The Standard Chautauqua company closed a good five day program here. The twenty men who guaranteed the $600 to the Standard company are somewhat behind financially. The citizens of Trenton did not sign for another year. This year the heavy rains interfered with getting a good crowd.

FIVE ANSWER SPEED CHARGES.

Five persons appeared in police court Friday morning on speeding charges. Joe Miller was fined $15 and costs when he pleaded guilty and admitted that he went thirty-five miles an hour. W. G. Grainger, said to have also been going thirty-five per, contended that he was only going twenty miles an hour when arrested Thursday afternoon. He was fined $10 and costs. L. T. Baukum, 233 South Twenty-seventh, appeared Friday for trial on a speeding charge. He denies that he was going thirty-one miles an hour when arrested Wednesday night. His case was continued until when the speed officer can appear against him. Friday was Motorcycle Officer Towle's day off. For this reason a speeding case against Joe Wilson, 1622 Vine, was also continued and will be taken up at 9 a. m. Saturday. Mr. Wilson is booked as going thirty-nine miles an hour.

SMITH C. WILSON.

Lincoln druggist who was recommended to Governor Bryan as a member of the next board of state examiners at the Nebraska pharmaceutical association annual convention just closed at Hastings.

An International Test.

The ruling of the Treasury department, expressed thru a letter of instructions to its agents thru Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair, with regard to the liquor supplies on board of foreign ships in American ports, is apparently one to which the treasury was constrained by the recent decision of the supreme court. This decision was plain enough in its terms. It was to the effect that the national prohibition act extends to all merchant vessels, both foreign and domestic, when within the territorial waters of the United tates. It is not within the competence of officers of the United States government to disregard or to qualify such a decision. Liquor not clearly kept for sacramental or medicinal purposes, and not authorized as such by a permit or certificate of medicinal need must be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of the Volstead act, which command seizure. This ruling is to be put in force June 10. Inasmuch as the leading countries of Europe have announced that they interpret international law as sanctioning the maintenance of beverage supplies on board their ships in our ports, and that they intend to maintain the assumed right by sending their ships into our ports with such supplies regardless of contrary orders, it is evident that an international test of the question involved is bound to be made. In the making of such a test, it is probable that several nations of Europe will concur in challenging the right of the United States to interfere with their cargoes, tho Great Britain, as the chief maritime power of Europe, may fight the matter out for the rest of them.

Most Americans, it would seem, would in principle welcome such an international determination. It is hard to see how a supply of liquor, no attempt to land which is made, and which, so far as all Americans use or ordinary cognizance is concerned, lies perdu on the ship while it is within our waters, should worry American citizens in general or even the enforcement officers. But the question may arise whether the question involved in Great Britain's maintenance of her contention, for example, and our own refusal to admit it, is subject to arbitration. The supreme court says that foreign merchant ships in our territorial waters are subject to our domestic laws in all respects, and that the notion that the deck of the foreign ship is "foreign territory" is a fiction, a delusion. Under that decision, the question must be purely a domestic one. And how can a purely domestic question be submitted to arbitration in a foreign country? The question is interesting, but this objection, assuming a reasonable good will on both sides, should not be insuperable.

We seem to have been committed by the Eighteenth amendment and the national enforcement act under it, to an extreme and intrusive assumption in this matter. It is not likely that such an assumption is intended or desired by the American people. Under the circumstances a friendly adjustment of the matter ought to be possible and practicable. — Boston Transcript.

Civilization's Sweet Sounds.

A missionary who had been captured by cannibals managed to escape, and after wandering in terror thru the jungle he at last came to a native village. He crouched in the darkness beside the wall of a hut, almost afraid to breathe. Presently from within the hut came the sound of a voice. "Hell and fury! You infernal idiot, you ought to have doubled hearts."

"Thank heaven!" said the missionary, with a sigh of relief. "Thank heaven, I am again among Christians." —Boston Transcript.

SECRETARY OF NEBRASKA DRUGGISTS

J. G. McBRIDE

University Place man who was re-elected secretary of the State Pharmaceutical association at the annual meeting held at Hastings

Booze Was Dying in New York.

During the time Gotham has been talking loudly of prohibition as a farce, one by one its famous booze restaurants and hotels have gone out of business Sherry's, Martin's, Delmonico's and Little Hungary are no more, to name just a few of them, and in a recent week Murray's Roman Gardens closed its doors on account of prohibition

If prohibition had a fair chance at New York city it would prove itself as it has everywhere else under sincere enforcement But in a city which once had more than 17,000 open saloons linked up with its municipal ring and the tenderloin, it may be expected that it will take some genuine persistence in law enforcement to drive out the bootlegger and the lawless booze joint. New York city has never more than half-heartedly tried to enforce the law It needs to get religion.—Capper's Weekly

Walter Hagen Unable to Repeat Triumph in British Open

ENGLISHMAN WINS TROON TOURNAMENT

Arthur Havers With 295 Strokes For Seventy-Two Holes One Stroke Better Than American Titleholder.

TROON, June 15.—Arthur Havers, British professional, won the 1923 British open golf championship from a field of eighty-eight British and foreign stars that competed here over 72 holes Thursday and today.

The Britisher's score of 295 was the best turned in. He shot three perfect rounds, finishing with a 76 this afternoon under unfavorable weather conditions.

Walter Hagen, American, last year's champion, was one stroke behind Havers.

TROON, June 15.—Walter Hagen, winner of the British open golf championship in 1922, failed this year to repeat his triumph.

Arthur Haver, the new champion, was three strokes over par in the final round, finishing with a total of 295. This left Hagen with a chance to beat the Britisher if he shot a par 73. Havers had a 76 this afternoon, the first time he has been over par.

TROON, June 15.—MacDonald Smith, hard-hitting California professional, reckoned out of things in the British open golf championship electrified the gallery this morning by smashing the course record at Troon with a brilliant 69.

No sooner had the excitement occasioned by this subsided than word came in that Joe Kirkwood, an Australian but a resident of the United States, had duplicated the Californian's feat.

His Chance for Title.

As a result of this unexpected exhibition, Smith, who stood in a tie for fifth place after the first day's play, now has an aggregate of 222 for the 54 holes, and a chance at the title.

Kirkwood who was two strokes ahead in the overnight standing with his 69 had an aggregate of 220.

TROON, June 15.—Walter Hagen, fighting in the van of American contenders for the British open golf championship, dropped back a stroke in the third round play today and was passed by Joe Kirkwood, the Australian, while Arthur Havers, Britain, increased his lead.

C. A. Whitcombe, who was tied for the lead yesterday, took 74 to go around this morning and dropped back to a tie for second place.

Walter Hagen Now Fourth.

The standing was Havers, 219; Kirkwood, 220; Whitcombe, 220; Hagen, 221 and Smith, 222.

Hagen, who won the title last year, was one stroke behind Havers overnight but took a 74 this morning while the Britisher took a 73.

Brilliant, record smashing scores of 69 turned in by Joe Kirkwood and MacDonald Smith, the Californian, were the features of the morning play.

Johnny Farrell, and George Aulbach, others of the American team, turned in cards of 75 today which let them out of the running.

Smith Completes Fourth Round.

T. R. Fernie finished with a total of 300, taking a 75 on the last 18. George Duncan shot a 74 for a total of 302. S. Wingate took 75 for 304.

MacDonald Smith was the first of the leaders to complete his final round in which he took 75, for a total of 297.

ENGLISH CHAMPION MUST HAVE HIS TEA

Jimmy Wilde, English flyweight champion, who meets Pancho Villa June 18, being served by Mrs. Wilde in their Jersey City Camp.

Kilbane's Long Absence From the Ring Cost Him Featherweight Crown

Dempsey might do well to profit by experiences of deposed veteran —Criqui a deserving boxer.

NEW YORK, N. Y. June 15—Johnny Kilbane lost the world's featherweight championship not so much because he was a "used up old man," but because he was not used enough.

Jack McAuliffe, the retired, undefeated lightweight champion, put this theory in good words when he said Kilbane's case was not the one of the pitcher going to the well once too often, but of the pitcher who didn't make the trip often enough.

Kilbane passed out from under his crown because he missed with his right hand, not once, but nearly every time he found an opening for it. He had not boxed enough in the last two years to keep up his judgment of distance.

After Kilbane's exhibition, showing the danger of remaining out action so long, a lot of the wise boys are looking upon Tommy Gibbons as a stronger opponent for Dempsey than he was originally considered.

Dempsey had better not miss with his right hand the way Kilbane did. If he misses only once it may be fatal for him, and if he misses many times, he is almost sure to be knocked out.

Can't Take the Chance.

No heavyweight in the business can take the chance of missing Gibbons.

After the second round in Jersey City when Carpentier cracked him on the jaw with the famous rigth hand, Dempsey remarked in his corner:

"That's the best he's' got and I can take it."

He can't take the best that Gibbons has.

After the fourth round against Kilbane, Criqui told his seconds: "He can't hurt me."

Kilbane could have hurt him however, and he did hurt him several times, but Kilbane couldn't hit him with his full strength. He had lost his judgment of distance and his timing was all off.

Johnny said after the fight that he was afraid of his hands. He was avoiding the possibility of breaking one of his dukes on the head of the Frenchman, but if he had kept himself in fighting form instead of staying out of the ring for two years he would not have been in that danger.

Kilbane never was popular with the ring gang in New York, and he did not make any new friends when he lost the championship. Perhaps he doesn't care, because he doesn't depend on that element.

"Why didn't he give some American boy a chance for that title. He knew he was going to lose," one of them said after the fight.

As bad as he looked to be, Kilbane might not have lost his title against any of the American contenders. There is no American featherweight as good and as strong at the weight as Cirqui.

Criqui Deserves Honor.

Kilbane, no doubt, will never defend himself for matching himself with a foreigner when he might have known that he was going to lose.

He could have picked no worthier and more deserving successor Eugene Criqui. There isn't an American fighter in any division who has a war record like Criqui. The Frenchman can boast of what he did for his country and the only thing that can be pointed out in the records of most of the American "fighters" is what they didn't do when they had the chance to do some real fighting.

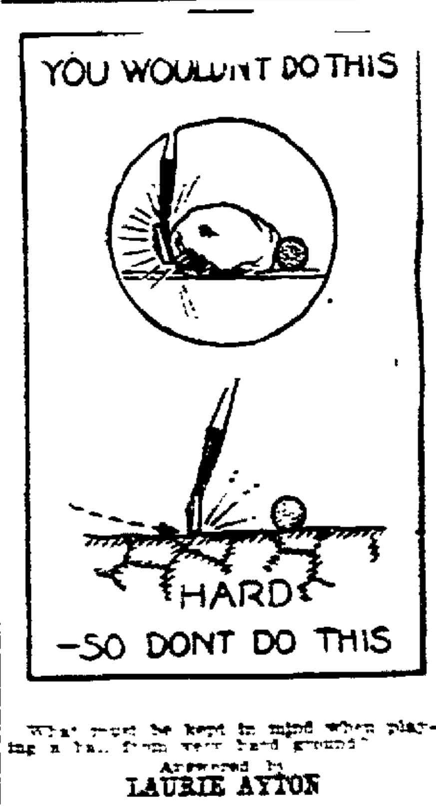

Criqui has the chance to make a fortune, Kilbane did as the featherweight champion, and it is only to be hoped that Eugene Criqui can make twice as much as his predecessor. He deserves it.

Jack Kearns and Dan McKetrick are the American representatives of the Frenchman, and it is a chinch that he will be placed in the position of making the most of his opportunities. Kearns is the smartest manager in the business and McKetrick isn't far behind him.

Criqui was forced into an agreement to fight Johnny Dundee before he won his fight with Kilbane, but the Frenchman hasn't much to fear from Dundee. Johnny is well along, he isn't what he used to be and he doesn't like making weight.

Outside of Dundee, the American featherweights aren't much.

LITTLE LESSONS IN GOLF

What must be kept in mind when playing a ball from very hard ground?

Answered by
LAURIE AYTON

Always a consistent place winner in the big tournaments—National Open, Metropolitan Open, Western Open, and sectional [illegible]. Famed for his accuracy and steadiness under fire.

In playing from very hard ground hit the ball and hit it clean, without taking turf before the shot. Hitting hard ground with the club before the ball is struck will spoil the direction of the shot by turning the shaft in the player's hands, and will rob the impact of the firmness and pep which it should have.

DEMPSEY INSISTS HE NEEDS THE $300,000

Champion Says His Manager Knows His Purse Will Be Forthcoming—Looks Better in Thursday Workouts.

By Henry L. Farrell.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 15.—(Copyright, 1923, by United Press.)—While Jack Kearns made arrangements today to collect another $100,000 for the firm, Jack Dempsey remained at his little roadhouse training camp on the Missouri river to attend to his end of the business.

"I need the dough, yes, I do," the champion explained. "It takes money to run those coal mines and a couple of other things I got outside the ring."

Dempsey had heard stories circulated that the promoters of his fight with Tommy Gibbons in Shelby July 4 did not have the money to pay the second installment on the champion's $300,000 purse.

"Kearns says it's all right," Dempsey said. "He found out that they had the dough and he usually finds the right dope."

Kearns said he is not only sure of getting the second installment, but he has been shown that the money is available for the final payment forty-eight hours before the two heavyweights go into the ring.

Dempsey looked somewhat better in his workout yesterday. He seemed faster and more ambitious, but he still missed a lot of punches and he stopped too many of George Godfrey's rights with his jaw. Godfrey was not hitting hard. The champion knocked out Jack Burke, a light heavyweight, and pounded Harry Drake dizzy.

Baseball the Loser When C. J. Miles Dies

Altho C. J. Miles, president of the Nebraska state league, who died Thursday, has been inactive for some time in league affairs, his influence has been felt. It was his energy and shrewd direction that made the first season of the state league successful and likewise made possible a second season.

At the annual meeting of the directors the last time Mr. Miles tried to withdraw his name as a nominee for re-election. The directors would not permit it and he was re-elected. He has been in failing health for over a year and the press of his own business and the league's affairs proved too much. He was forced to go south to recuperate. Dick Grotte of Omaha was named acting president in Mr. Miles' absence and he has filled the office very efficiently.

A meeting of the directors will be held June 20, and at that time the vacancy caused by Mr. Miles' death will be filled. The question of whether to split the season or not will also be considered at this session.

Roy Chick Matched For Kansas Show

Roy Chick, middleweight wrestler, will meet "Mysterious" Green of Superior, Neb., in a finish match at Republic, Kas., the latter part of June. Green weighs 218 pounds. In a previous match Chick took two straight falls. Chick recently beat Bud Weaver at Belleville, Kas., after losing the first fall. Chick is anxious to meet Adam Krieger in a match here and he intimated that there was a possibility of a Fourth of July show being arranged.

BULLETIN SERVICE ON FIGHT

The Journal will announce the blow-by-blow story of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight at Shelby, Mont., July 4. The titular battle gets under way at 3 p. m. Shelby time, which is 4 o'clock here. The Journal will have a leased wire at the ringside and those fight fans blessed with a little imagination can get the red hot dope and keep a constant picture of the fight before them.

315 COLLEGE TRACK STARS ARE ON HAND

Nebraska Named Among Teams Expected to Give California Brush For Title—Trial Heats Start Friday.

By Edward C. Derr.

CHICAGO, June 15.—The pick of American college athletes whipped their colors before a stiff Lake Michigan breeze today as they started in the preliminaries of the third annual track and field meet of the national collegiate A. A. at Stagg field.

Trial heats in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, the 440 and 880 yard runs, the 220-yard low hurdles and the 120 yard high hurdles were to be run off late this afternoon. The first event—the 440—was to start at 3 p. m.

Field Events Postponed.

Preliminaries in the field events were postponed until tomorrow when the semi-finals and finals of the track events are held.

Every American collegiate athlete expected to win a place on the United States Olympic team next year is entered. Three hundred and fifteen individuals are participating.

Individual performers who will be watched with interest are Charlie Brookins of Iowa, world's champion in the 220-yard low hurdles; his teammate, Eric Wilson, a star in the 220-yard dash; E. I. Tootel, Bowdoin giant who throws the hammer; Spearow of Washington, the best pole vaulter on the Pacific coast; Allan Helffrich, crack half-miler from the east, and De Hart Hubbard, Michigan's broad jumper, who has come within an inch of the world's record.

Teams picked to fight it out for the title—won last year by the University of California—were Penn State, University of Michigan, University of Texas, Leland Stanford, Johns Hopkins, University of Nebraska, University of Southern California, and University of Washington.

Light Rain Falling.

Sixty-two colleges and universities from twenty-seven states were entered. Six places will count in the finals.

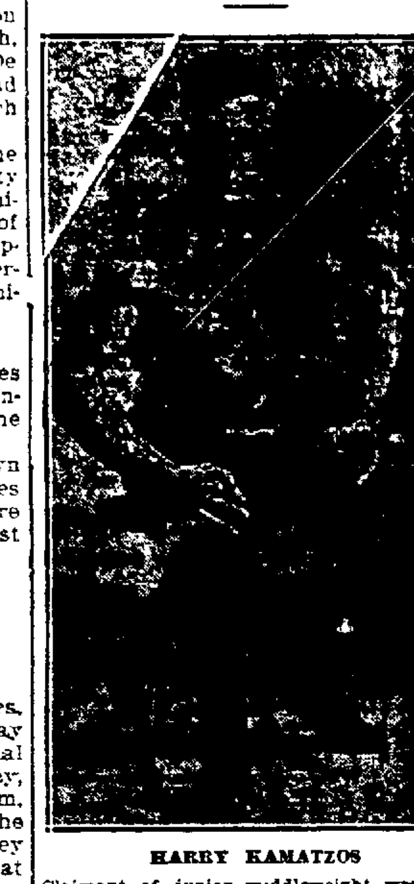

With a light rain trickling down from threatening clouds, the athletes took the field for final workouts before the gun sends them off in the first event.

Cornhusker Team Leaves for Meet

Four Cornhusker athletes, Crites, Turner, Lear and Coats, left Thursday with Coach Schulte for the national collegiate at Chicago. Chick Hartley, captain of last season's football team, followed Friday. Hartley broke the javelin record of the Missouri valley conference in the preliminary trials at Ames in May.

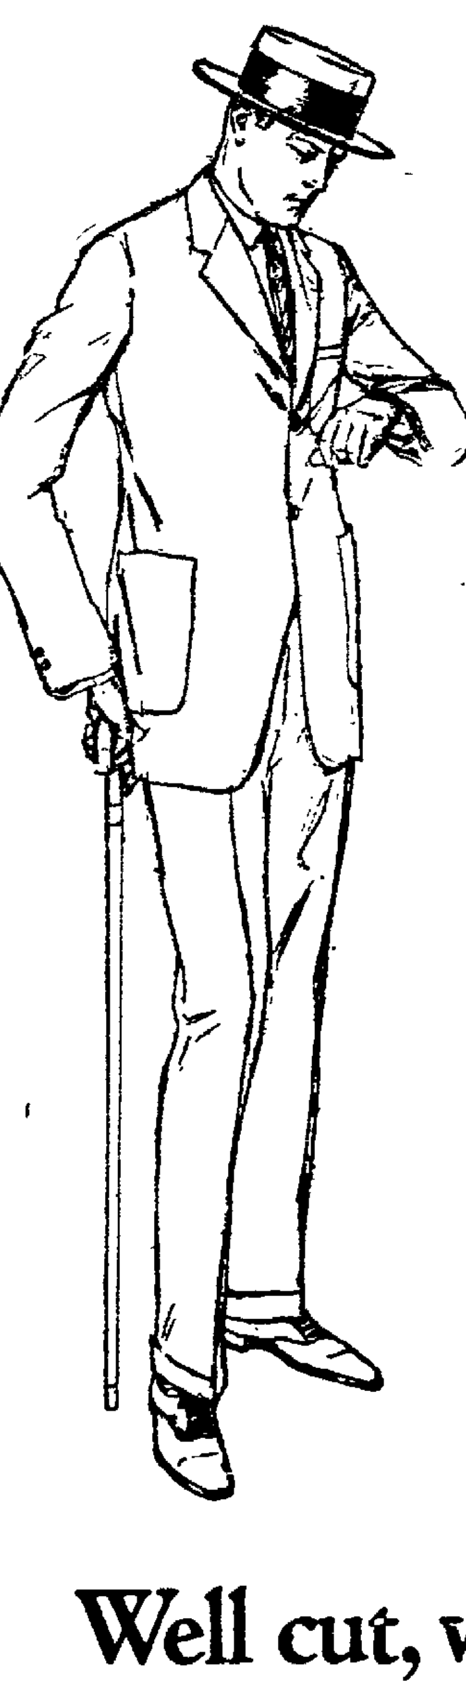

Charles Ames of Sioux City was elected president of the Iowa section of the national association of stationary engineers.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, June 15. On receipt of generally favorable crop news prices firmed up at the close on the Chicago board of trade today.

Following the good spurt at the opening, which lasted thruout the morning session, wheat trading firmed up on receipt of more favorable crop news. Harvesting was under way in parts of Missouri and Oklahoma wherever rains have not made the fields unworkable.

Talk of backward crops caused considerable strength in deferred corn months. Fields were weedy in spots. Traders believed the first government report on the new corn crop, to be issued July 1, will show conditions far below normal. The cash market was strong.

Light trading featured the oats market. Southwestern fields are yellow from excessive rains.

Provisions had no late feature and the market closed higher with grains.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Opening grain review: Unfavorable crop news brought advances in grain prices on the Chicago board of trade today.

Good local buying in wheat followed receipt of reports that Kansas fields are in a critical condition as the result of floods. Liverpool opened lowed, but at 2 o'clock regained some of its earlier losses. Broomhall wired Manitoba wheat was being offered considerably below a parity with values being asked by first-hand sellers and that resellers continued to dominate the market. Argentine and Indian wheat was being offered freely. B. W. Snow, local crop expert, wired from Kansas that the damage to crops in that state would be severe. Receipts, 10 cars.

The corn market had good local support. Fields were said to be weedy. Receipts of 95 cars were liberal.

Oats advanced with other grains. Receipts, 100 cars.

There was no early trading in provisions and that market was unchanged at yesterday's closing prices.

B. W. Snow's Report.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Following from B. W. Snow, from Hutchinson, Kas.: Car-window observation and talks with local grain men convince me that situation in Kansas is very critical. A few scattered showers today and raining again tonight. For fifty miles in Cottonwood valley, bottom and wheat is destroyed. Reports here indicate that water-killed wheat on low spots will average about 5 per cent in the best fields, and my observation leads me to believe it. Wheat is taking color and another week will commence harvest. More rain, even one more storm, would destroy a heavy percentage of the crop. This condition embraces fully half of the remaining acreage and represents the area that has had the best promise. The crop has lost materially since June 1 and must have dry weather at once or suffer further harvest losses. Rail and motor travel still shut off thru the big south-central wheat counties. —Lamson.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, June 15.—The largest grain house in Paris cables McKenna and Dickey yesterday that weather in France is clearing and that there is no demand for wheat for France.

A seaboard house commenting on the cable said it led them to believe that recent reports were grossly exaggerated as otherwise French buyers would be the first to bid for wheat, especially as exchange at the moment is favorable.

Many traders would buy wheat with any encouragement in the news and a little help from the outside. Of late, bulges have not held long enough for traders to become confident of their position and they are not going far on either side of the market. For the most part, the disposition is to take profits on all bulges.

Had it not been for the late weakness in wheat, corn would have closed stronger.

There is little in the news to result in large operations either way in oats.

September corn is considered at too wide a discount under July. The latter is being bought because of light receipts, good cash premiums and decreasing stocks. An experienced trader believes crop prospects are such as not to encourage selling September at such a discount.

Export sales of wheat were around 200,000 bushels, including 80,000 bushels new crop winters. A little old crop hard was also sold via Montreal. General demand was poor. No business in corn or rye was announced.—Lamson.

Grain Market Opinions.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: We look for lower prices.

Riordan & Martin: Purchase on breaks are suggested.

Thomson-McKinnon: We anticipate an irregular market in wheat. The crop outlook does not suggest higher corn prices.

Logan & Bryan: We caution against selling on the breaks.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: We are confident prices will work higher.

Harris-Winthrop & Co.: As long as buying remains insistent prices advance easily enough. Lack of outside support is evident when holders attempt to realize.

Clement-Curtis & Co.: Unless more outside interest develops a trading market is likely.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Rains northwest would likely bring lower prices.

Hulburd-Warren & Chandler: Outside speculation continues indifferent to what might develop into an extremely bullish situation.—Lamson.

Stock Market Opinions.

Post & Flagg: The market closed with great uncertainty.

Housman & Co.: We still are bullish on ALO.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: We believe it a good time to carry surplus funds into dividend paying stocks.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: Suggest a trading position.

Clark-Childs & Co.: Buying appears evident in the rails on soft spots.—Lamson.

Ex Divs.: GST, 1 per cent; BSF, 1 3-4 per cent; PF. Ex. Dv., 1 3-4.

Housman: There is no change that we can see in the general character of the market, nor in the character of the buying and selling which remains largely professional. It is to be noted, however, that in some directions short selling is helped by liquidation whereas most of the buying appears to be for short account and does not seem to represent positive additions to long stock accounts. The speculative opinion shifts so rapidly in the present market, sentiment is so confused that opinions as to the course of prices at best are mere guesses. The technical position of stocks as floor traders interpret, seems to decide the immediate trend of prices in most cases and news influences remains in the background—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Despite the appearance of general heaviness on the market the previous afternoon, the industrial average closed at a loss of only one-third of a point while the railroad compilation was scarcely off a quarter. Encouragement derived from the ressitance to the bearish pressure was supplemented by the showing of the weekly federal reserve statement noting a reserve ratio of 77 per cent compared with 77.4 per cent a year ago despite the tremendous expansion in industrial activity since that time.

The Leviathan Junket.

If the Leviathan needs a trial trip, which is more than doubtful, why not fill her cabins with disabled but convalescent service men from the government hospitals?

This suggestion is not original with the World. It comes from various readers, and it is so appropriate that we take pleasure in submitting it to the president of the United States. Mr. Lasker would never understand, but Mr. Harding would.

The Leviathan was the outstanding American troop ship in the world war. It is the symbol of the nation's vast achievement in transporting 2,000,000 troops to France and turning the balance that decided the issue of the most stupendous of all conflicts. Reconditioned after an expenditure of millions and preparing to resume her place among the great transatlantic liners, it would have been no more than fitting that in resuming her peace-time status, but under the American flag, she had paid a slight tribute of respect to the khaki-clad brought home from France, thousands of whom will remain cripples and invalids during the rest of their lives.

Instead of doing this, Mr. Lasker in the name of the shipping board has planned the most colossal junket ever undertaken at public expense. The invitation list is Mr. Lasker's list. It is made up of office-holders, politicians, editors and writers, all of whom are supposed to have a special advertising value for the purposes that Mr. Lasker has in mind, and his main purpose, is always Mr. Lasker. Even Mrs. Harding, who indiscreetly asked some of her friends to go on the trip, was obliged to recall the invitations when she found that her plans did not coincide with the Lasker plans.

To all effect the Laviathan junket is a private affair for the glorification of Mr. Lasker, to be paid for by the American taxpayer who has no part in it. Why President Harding ever permitted it we do not know, but the president's attitude toward Mr. Lasker is something that has always defied explanation.

It is not too late, however, for Mr. Harding to intervene. It is not too late for him to order the Lasker junket canceled. It is not too late for him to select disabled service men in place of the Lasker guests and make the Leviathan's trial trip an event that would be worthy of the ship and of her magnificent record in the war.

Nobody quite knows what the Lasker junket will cost, but nobody would care what this excursion for the disabled service men cost. The American people would pay the bill and pay it gladly.—New York World.

The Monkey in the Man.

Of psychoanalysis it may be said literally, at least in one sense, that it is such stuff as dreams are made of. Some of us may be tempted to expand the sense and stuff to the significance of stuff and nonsense. But it is more moderate, and more exact to say that this new scientific notion, like many such notions, divides itself into a smaller element, which may in a much larger element which might more correctly be called stuffing. Psychoanalysis can no longer be dismissed as a fad; it has risen to the dignity of a fashion, and possesses all that moral authority and intellectual fintlity which we associate with a particular pattern of hats or whiskers. It stands now in the open street, visible to the man in the street, like some florid and magnificent tailor's dummy outside a tailor's shop. And it is borne in upon me, as a humble passerby, that it time that somebody kicked the stuffing out of it. . . . .

Turn from this to the fantastic fashion plate now in vogue in which the subconscious man is already photographed as huge and hairy as his predecessor, the missing link, now, alas! no more. The minor poetry, the fashionable fiction, the talk of the drawing-room, and the tags of the newspapers are full of some ridiculous mythology about every man having inside him a sort of aged and microcephalous monkey. Wistful and melancholy poems are written about how trying it is for a man to have a monkey inside him, and ethical essays earnestly debate whether the man should own the monkey or the monkey the man. Men are forgetting that unconsciousness is unconscious, exactly as they forgot that the missing link was missing. They are making a picture of the subconscious man exactly as they made a picture of the superman. In the existing atmosphere of the thing, if it does not indeed pass like a fashion, it can only remain as a superstition. The modern world may or may not recover a religion, but it is rapidly making a mythology.—G. K. Chesterton in the Century.

What He Got.

"I was downtown today," said the busy housewife, "and I secured a number of splendid bargains."

"You generally do," observed the good provider, passing his plate for another piece of pie. "I was mixed up in a bargain counter rush last week, and I was thankful to escape with my clothing intact. As it was, I had a new hat jammed over my eyes and I lost a pair of glasses and a fountain pen."

"I never knew you were interested in bargains," said the busy housewife. "What were you looking for? I could have got it for you."

"I think," he said, "that the other men did delegate the job to their wives. I was the only man in the crowd. However, I got what I was looking for."

"The next time," said his wife, "you will know better how to go about it. All that is required is practice.

"I always thought this bargain counter rush was a kind of a game," said the good provider, leaning back in his chair, "like one of those old time grab bags they have at bazaars, where you reach in and grab, and you don't know what you are getting until afterward?"

"You talk," said the busy housewife, "as if you hadn't exercised judgment the other day."

Her husband grinned. "I didn't, that's true. It was a sale of socks, the kind that won't develop a hole no matter how roughly they are treated."

"Yes?" prompted his wife.

"Well," he continued, "I bought six pair, and when I got back to the office and observed the striking pattern I had selected I wilted the remainder of my collar and I gave the socks to the janitor. He was grateful, but he wears 'em only when he is working around the office; told me his wife wouldn't let him put them on at home."

"I think you had better go back to your old style of purchasing supplies," said the busy housewife. "You're too temperamental for the bargain counter."—Chicago Daily News.

Bright Lights—and Lamps.

She never would have told him every night at dinner how bald he was if the great red and green stained-glass dome over the dining-room table had not shone cruelly down and illumined the bald spot. And if the light had been kinder, he never would have retaliated with a cutting remark about people who were too lazy to reduce and looked ten years older than they needed to.

Who knows? From such trifles are human happiness and misery made. Perhaps he never would have said all the horrible things that were detailed to the judge at the divorce trial, and he would never have spent the rest of his life smiling cynically whenever any one referred to any possible good quality of womankind if between them they had known how to light their house.

The church understands lighting. What else but the heavenly quiet and dim light gives you the sense of peace and reverence that comes over you as you enter a big cathedral? And it is the hushed light of the deep woods, quite as much as the quiet, that brings happy thoughts and good counsel when you are worried and ill.

We are beginning to learn. All that we used to ask of a lamp was that it should give a bright, steady glare. Don't you remember the brilliant evening illumination in the family living room—only we called it the sitting room in those days—when we all gathered about a great lamp with a white shade or a big stained glass electrolier and did our lessons? Floods of light, that was the idea, floods everywhere. Nowadays any one with the slightest notion of how to make a room comfortable and charming begins with the lamps.—Designer Magazine.

Favor High Price Level.

Ever since the great slump in agricultural prices which occurred late in 1920, bankers, economists, merchants and manufacturers have been telling each other solemnly that it is their duty as producers of things which the farmer buys to get those goods down to a price basis somewhere near the same ratio to present farm prices as that which existed in 1913. In the face of all this effort to be of help to them, the farmers have almost unanimously stated that they are far more interested in increased prices for their farm products than they are in decreased prices for the things they buy. In fact, far-sighted farmers have stated flatly that, since high prices for farm products must mean high wages for labor and a high general level of incomes in the city in order to meet the increased cost of living, they are in favor of a general increase in the price level.

One farmer recently said to me, "I notice that the years when I have to pay the most for plows, shoes, and clothing, are the years when I have the most money left in the bank at the end of the year."

It is not necessary to suppose that most farmers have ever thought out just the line of reasoning used here. Many of them have, but a great many more, without following the full line of thought thru, have come to the conclusion voiced by the man I have just quoted. Their immediate interests are with inflation and not with deflation, and, whatever the ultimate result may be, they are going to throw and keep on throwing their immense political power toward the side of easy money and higher prices, even if the ease of money must be artificially established.

If the mortgaged farmer is to be rescued, his rescue must be accomplished thru an increase in prices of what he sells, rather than thru a decrease in prices of what he buys.—Ray Vance, in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.)

Circus.

With an alacrity in its own self characteristically American, the circus is driven at top speed. No sooner have the acrobatic Nelsons—"positively all one family of father, mother, six daughters and one son"—quit scrambling one another furiously around ring No. 2, than Manuel Herzog and his black Hungarian stallions come cantering in to take their place, on the last eddies of an echoing applause. Scarcely has the sawdust settled in the wake of the Sevillos and their dappled ponies, than Mr. Shroder supersedes them with his roller skating polar bears. One wave of the wand —and where a Rooney stretched his arms to catch a swiftly flying brother, six slippery seals are balancing umbrellas on top their leathery noses. Acts follow one another like express trains thru a tunnel. Everything is gallop. Stage hands rush to knot and unknot myriads of tangled ropes. A whistle blows. Two mail cars rattle up with seven lions. As no where in our indoor theater does the passion of America for rapid action find expression. Here, where one magic moment can transform the panther's den into a blazing tenement to be salvaged by a company of reckless clowns, there is epitomized that spirit which exults in twenty-story buildings rising over night where yesterday was just a hole —the spirit of mammoth furnaces in the Allegheny hills that clamor greedily for ore dug far away in Minnesota and rushed with circus speed from mere earth to polished steel—of iron cities hammered out in one short generation from little frontier towns with trading posts and forts. The circus has the nervous energy of young America. For its own colonists it builds a distant city every morning.—Charles Merz in The New Republic.

Explosion in Carburetor.

Popping back at the carburetor is exceedingly dangerous if the carburetor has just been primed or there is much of a leak. It is caused by lean mixture, leaky inlet valve or electrical troubles in distributor, which cause an explosion in cylinder when inlet valve is open. Look over these parts carefully, as occasionally a car burns and is a total loss from this cause alone.—Automobile Digest.

Clean Up Week for Celluloid.

By Neal O'Hara.

There is reform gesture active to wash up movies like an old woolen sock. It is conceded by unimpartial critics that movies warp rascalities of younger sex and curdle morals of senile folks from octogenarians up. Something ought to be done about it. Like painting our gelatine product with whipped cream.

Old man hobbles with only daughter to luxurious darkness of film salon. Dessert prepared by Hollywood gelatine chefs is vamp picture in six pulsating sections. Vampness in clinging suit of silk overwear pets multi-rich banker within an inch of his apoplexy. It is very giddy strip of continuity. Old banker buck gets squeezes, hugs and kisses. Not to mention caresses and touches. Then vamperino gets heavy draft and old boy gets the air.

Now what is effect of this pernicious shifty on man and daughter in 55 cent seats? Girl hurries home to study ways and meanings of being first-class vamp. Old man starts in saving jitneys so he can become rich banker.

Influence of fillums is nothing but atrocious. Sturdy cornfield yokel of Iowa's open spaces squanders thin dime on two-reel entertainment. Sees big yam more simple than himself frolicking in surf with sixteen bathing cuties. And those babes sure have lines that ain't in the sub-titles. Awful result? Iowa loses picture patron. He jacks up job on wheat plateau and mooches fast for nearest seashore.

Is there no end to viciousness of celluloid peril? Seagoing diver drops into flicker den and sees handsome villain with highly polished hair hopping graceful fox-trots with blondes at de luxe ball. Gapes at slick-scalped villain rushing sherbets to debutantes and sneaking osculations behind potted rubber plants.

What are consequences of film's vile influence? Our hero hocks his diving suit and rents dress outfit with high silk hat. And those are only sample crimes on movie blotter.

There is only one prescription for sick patient of Hollywood, and Edison invented that. Tomasso says make movies educational. Sweet idea. We dress up Little Rollo in his kindergarten duds and shoo him into primary palace of first releases. Dear teacher is sweating Tarzan in asbestos cell and blackboard is ten square yards of white sheet.

First lesson will be geography. Bound United States of America. In two snappy reels of newsy weekly, showing bootleg fleets on East and West coasts and posse of hooch trucks on Canadian and Mexican borders. That's bounding it correct.

The class in anatomy will come next. Operator, please switch on Max Ennett's farce, "Skirmishers of the Surf." Thank you. No, Theodore, the cross-eyed man is incidental to the anatomical lesson to be learned. I fear you are overlooking the subject completely.

Now we shall have our reading hour. Jennie, will you read the first eighteen sentences in Mr. Griffith's opening sub-title? Good. Very good. Now, Alfred, you may go on with the story, taking care to be just as perfectly rhapsodic as the author intends you to be.

Now the class is in aesthetic dancing. "Salome," in seven reels. All ready, operator. No, Frederick, I said reels, not veils. That is correct, however. Salome has seven veils. Herbert, you may count them as they fall off.

We shall now pass on to geometry. The first lesson will be bisecting the eternal triangle, with Gloria Handsome and an extensive wardrobe. Are there any questions to be asked? Very well, we shall proceed to triggernometry. Two-Gun Bill Hart in some very fine dirty work. The class is now dismissed.

Sounds a little too advanced, hey! Oh, well, that Hart thing will teach the young idea how to shoot.

MEN AND THINGS

Personally I am not going to worry because the rank and file of the English say that Americans are selfish and greedy because they insist upon Great Britain paying back the money she borrowed to carry on the war. Great Britain is somewhat impoverished at the present time, and every impoverished debtor doubtless views his creditor who insists on repayment as being a Shylock. The fact of the matter is, as every returned traveler reports, that greediness is the characteristic of about everybody they come in contact with. It isn't a question of whether we can afford to forgive these debts. It is a question of whether those who contracted them believe any obligation rests on them to keep their pledge of repayment.

What little economic knowledge we have acquired in the past seems to be of little assistance in solving the problems presented to us in these days of great business ramifications. For the first four months of the year the increase in the number of automobiles produced was 104 per cent, while gasoline consumption increased but 36 per cent and per capita incomes and earnings but from 15 to 20 per cent. Take those pieces and try to fit them together. Maybe production of machines and consumption of gasoline have different peaks in a year.

Nothing could be more futile, in the realm of reason and logic at least, than to invoke the doctrine of state's rights to protect each commonwealth from a national prohibition amendment. Governor Smith of New York used this argument to justify his act of nullification. If the state of New York has the right to refuse to abide by the decree of the federal constitution, it can take the vote away from women, the election of United States senators from the people, the right of suffrage from the negro, and rid its rich of the incubus of an income tax. Yet his voice is silent upon the question of federal ravishment on these matters. Is the right to drink more sacred than the vote and property?

Secretary Antles of the state department of public welfare says that as a result of the investigations made by workers in the beet fields of western Nebraska conditions for children are much improved. Consolidated schools have been built that give opportunity for the children who go with the heads of the families to work in the fields to get their full quota of school work, impossible at home because of the early date of their departure for the fields and the lateness of their return. A few years ago the western part of the state was madder than a hornet because of the matters published by Mrs. Hornberger, who made the first investigation, but all is forgiven now that they have been prompt to apply the remedies.

Those democratic weeklies that have been telling their readers that the code prevents the governor from changing men about from one department to another but requires him to maintain some state employes in half-idleness while other bureaus are under-manned would be doing themselves as well as their readers a service by reading over the very first section of the code. One of the good things about that system is that it permits, for the first time in political history, just that shifting about. Temporarily it is being blocked by a refusal of other state offcers who differ in politics and policies from the governor to recognize that the appropriation follows the employe. But it is not the fault of the code system that this situation has resulted.

I have always been rather surprised that poor men strive and battle to become rich. I never met a poor man who would discourse on the subject who did not believe himself to be frankly and patently the superior of the rich man. Almost invariably he thinks that the riches were secured by some sort of shenanigan, and as he is not himself rich he assumes that he has not been guilty of anything and consequently is much the superior morally of the rich man. He is equally confident that he has better taste and judgment. Why does he want to exchange?

AS HE SAW IT.

"Do tell me something about the play," she said to the young man. "They say the climax was superb."

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good," said Percy.

"Can't you describe it to me?" she asked.

"Well, the heroine came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of purple flowers and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon him, stabbed him and sank half-conscious into a very handsome aigret. This may sound queer, but the woman in front of me wouldn't remove her hat and that's how it looked."—Chicago News.

The combined ages of Mary and Ann are 44 years, and Mary is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was half as old as Ann will be when Ann is three times as old as Mary was when Mary was three times as old as Ann. How old is Mary?

The second player should win in the Daisy Game, and the secret is to keep the petals divided into halves. If your opponent leads off with No. 1, you draw Nos. 7 and 8. But if he draws Nos. 1 and 2, then you draw No. 8, and in both cases you would leave for him two groups of five petals each. From that point you continue by imitating his play. If he draws two petals on the left side you must draw the corresponding two from the right. If he draws a single from the left you draw a single from the right. By this system you keep the sides similar, and so eventually he will be presented with the "old maid" stump.

Senator Hale said in a Y. M. C. A. address in Bangor against speculating: "Nothing is so hopeless as a young man speculating. A broker was heard to say to a confrere one day:

"'Young George Brown has certainly learned the market well. He's been speculating nearly a year now, and he's still got some of his father's fortune left."—Los Angeles Times.
